Believe Prisoners Moving

French Planes See Columns of Men Moving North From Fallen Fortress

SAIGON, Indochina, May 8 (AP)—French planes sighted columns of men marching north from Dien Bien Phu today and Gen. Henri Navarre said they were apparently French Union forces taken prisoner after the fortress fell to the Communist-led Vietminh.

Whether Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries, the heroic commander of Dien Bien Phu, was among the marchers was not known. A Vietminh broadcast said Dien Bien Phu's commander had been taken —but did not refer to him by name. His last words before he vowed to fight to the end were "Au revoir, mon general. Vive la France."

There was no word also on the fate of Genevieve de Galard Terraube, the 29-year-old French nurse who was the only woman in the fortress, or of the 1,500 to 2,000 seriously wounded French Union fighters for whom she helped care.

Navarre, the French commander in chief in Indochina, said planes dropped food and medical supplies over the stilled battlefield this afternoon. The pilots saw the parachutes picked up.

The last three battalions in Isabelle, the diehard southern strongpoint, made a bold attempt early today to smash their way to freedom. But the overwhelming pressure of rebel opposition forced them back and there was no doubt that they had bowed to superior strength.

Peiping radio claimed the "annihilation" of 2,000 French Union forces at Isabelle when they tried to smash their way out.

French observation pilots said only deathlike stillness reigned over the battle area today.

It was to Brig. Gen. Rene Cogny, the French commander at Hanoi, that De Castries addressed his last words.

He told Cogny: "The enemy have infiltrated into the entire central fortress. Our munitions are insufficient. The resistance will be drowned out.

"The Vietminh are a few yards from the radio over which I am talking to you. They are everywhere. I have given the order to inflict the maximum amount of damage. We will not surrender."

The last words from the radio operator were: "In five minutes everything will blow up here. The enemy is only a few yards away. Greetings to everyone."

The French military command in Hanoi deliberately suppressed all news of the fall of Dien Bien Phu for many hours after Premier Laniel announced it in Paris. Not a line of news was permitted to be sent out of Hanoi all yesterday and nothing until up to 9 a.m. Hanoi time today.

Navarre talked informally with newsmen here. He said the fall of Dien Bien Phu did not alter his over-all plan calling for decisive action against the Vietminh not this year but next.

In an order of the day to his Indochina forces he declared: "The struggle of the free peoples against slavery does not end today. The fight continues."

The order said the sacrifice of the defenders "has not been in vain, for in five months a dozen battalions have fixed and contained more than 30 Vietminh battalions, saving upper Laos from invasion and preserving the Tonkin Delta."

Navarre said it was possible that the Vietminh would move its heavy artillery surrounding Dien Bien Phu into the strategic Red River Delta within the next 15 days.

Possession by the rebels of a heavy guns at Dien Bien Phu, he added, had turned the Indochina war into a new kind of conflict.

He said this makes internationalization of the war a possiblity if the Geneva conference fails to work out a settlement, for France could not bear alone the full brunt of fighting.

Operator Dies When Loaded Elevator Falls

ST. LOUIS, May 8 (AP)—An elevator loaded with lead bars plunged to the basement of a lead foil company today killing the operator, Emmett Burns, 51.

Burns was the only person on the freight elevator which dropped from the mezzanine floor of the Johnston Foil Co., when a cable broke.

Lake Is Rising

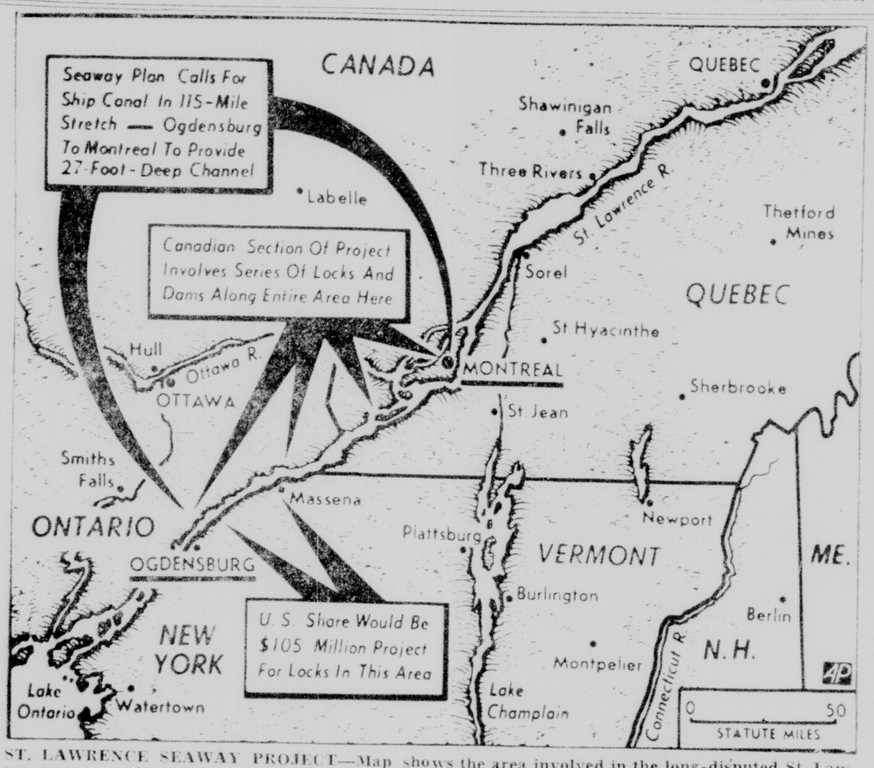

Fishermen are noting the Lake of the Ozarks is rising. Not long ago it was down to 42 feet, but today's report, you'll note, lists it at 53.3. It just keeps coming up as the spring rains add to the moisture in the area.

In Sedalia Saturday morning the temperature was 38; 62 at 1 p.m., 65 at 4 pm.

One year ago today here high 83, low 56; two years ago 66, 51; three years ago 76, 60.

Third Ward Councilman Vote Tuesday

Polls Will Open From 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. For Special Election

Sedalia voters in the Third Ward will go to the polls Tuesday to elect a councilman to fill the unexpired term of Arthur Schwarz, who resigned last month. The polls will open at 6 a. m. and close at 7 p. m., the same as on any regular election.

All taverns within the city limits must remain closed on Tuesday inasmuch as it is considered an election day, regardless of the fact it is in only one ward.

The Democrats have placed Jimmy D. Shaw, 1603 East Seventh, on the ballot as their candidate and the Republicans have named George B. James, 801 East Sixth, as their candidate.

The vacancy was created when Schwarz resigned due to the interference of the city business with his private business, in which he stated it has taken too much of his time and his own business has been neglected.

Voting precincts are the usual places:

First precinct, Washington School; second precinct, Whittier School; third precinct, 2118 East Broadway; fourth precinct, Central Business College; and fifth precinct, 1604 South Ingram.

The newly elected councilman will take office at the next regular meeting of the City Council, which will be Monday night, May 17.

Authorize Over $80 Million Worth Of Highway Work

JEFFERSON CITY, May 8 (AP)—Missouri's Highway Commission authorized over $80 million worth of highway construction and improvements during the first 21 months of the 10-year, $557 million road program, it was reported here today.

Rex M. Whitton, chief engineer for the commission, announced the progress of the program at a meeting of the Missouri Architects and Professional Engineers.

But even that great surge may be offset by the big increase in the number of automobiles on the roads. Whitton said the nation added 3 million vehicles to the number using her streets and highways last year and if that pace continues for another 15 years "we'll have 80 million cars on our highways.

Old and inadequate highways now are causing an annual economic waste of $3 billion a year throughout the country, Whitton said, aside from the tremendous losses in life, injury and property damage.

Whitton told the engineers that thus far the state has paid for over 200 miles of concrete paving, about 210 miles of asphaltic concrete surfacing, more than 500 miles of low type bituminous surfacing, about 350 miles of oil aggregate surfacing and over a thousand miles of lower types of road surfacing.

Armed Forces Day May 16—

Plastic Balloon to Be Sent Aloft At Sunday's Open House

One of many demonstrations scheduled for Armed Forces Day, May 16, at Sedalia Air Force Base will be the launching of a huge plastic weather balloon by the Moby Dick Detachment at the base.

These balloons, measuring up to 80 feet in diameter and 130 feet in length, are used to study wind fields at altitudes between 50,000 and 100,000 feet above the earth. They carry aloft research instruments which record data vital to Air Force operations. The Navy pioneered the use of this type of balloon through "Sky Hook", to obtain new cosmic ray data.

Inflating a balloon of this size is no easy trick. It requires a large flat-bed truck equipped with a tent to shield the balloon from the wind and to hold it down until it is ready for release. Moby Dick calls these "Covered Wagon's".

When the balloon is filled and ready for launching it is released from the "covered wagon" by means of a rip cord. The normal rate of ascent is about 800 feet per minute. If the balloon fails to get above 30,000 feet in two and one half hours, a device automatically destroys it and a parachute cases the research equipment to the ground.

Once above 30,000 feet, however, the balloon rises to the preset altitude. To maintain a constant altitude, a very fine steel dust is used for ballast. The ballast is expended slowly if the balloon begins to descend. When the balloon falls to 30,000 feet it is automatically destroyed and the parachute takes over.

This demonstration will be held, weather permitting, at 3 p. m. on the afternoon of Armed Forces Day.

On display during the entire day, will be a large number of the Air Force's latest planes as well as the Navy's Cougar jet and Corsair. The six-jet Boeing B-47, which arrived at Sedalia AFB recently, will be on display as well as the B-25, B-26, C-47, C-45, T-28 and possibly the Air Force's huge C-124 Globemaster and the KC-97 tanker plane. It has not been determined definitely that the latter planes will be available.

A host of other demonstrations and exhibits are planned for Armed Forces Day at Sedalia AFB.

Officials at the base estimate a crowd of ten to twenty thousands people for the open house and a great deal of planning has gone into the traffic problem. To handle the heavy flow of cars, all gates will be opened including the South gate which connects with route 'D'. Rather than stop cars at the gates to pass out programs, the cars will be flagged through and directed to a huge parking area on the flight line. Airmen will be in this area to give out the programs.

During the day there will be a number of fly-overs by B-47's, C-46's and Navy F-4U's. A model airplane contest will begin at 11 a. m. and run most of the day. During the afternoon the base fire department will give a demonstration of fire fighting and crash rescue. There will give a demonstration of fire fighting and crash rescue. There will be judo demonstrations, exhibits by the maintenance section, survival section, training section, Red Cross, Boy Scouts and local contractors. The Bell Telephone Company will demonstrate use of micro-wave and have several interesting exhibits.

All this and much more is being planned Sunday, May 16, at Sedalia AFB.

Traffic Plan Delayed Until Early in Week

The traffic plan of the Chamber of Commerce promised The Democrat's readers for today, has been postponed due to mechanical trouble in preparing the drawings for publication. It is likely they will be ready for early next week.

GIs Reportedly Attacked Youths By Sweet Springs

The office of Sheriff John Taylor was notified shortly after 1 p.m. Saturday that two youths from Higginsville had been beaten up by a group of soldiers on Highway 127 south of Sweet Springs, a short time before. The State Highway Patrol was notified and is conducting an investigation in Pettis and Saline counties in reference to the attack.

It was reported one youth, who was identified as Thurmond Gassen, Higginsville, was treated by Dr. C. L. Worley at his office in Sweet Springs. It was also reported Gassen said another youth from Higginsville, Bob Beggon, was with him and he hasn't been seen since the attack.

According to information obtained from Sweet Springs, the two youths were hitching a ride to their car, a 1941 blue Chevrolet tudor sedan, and was picked up by the soldiers. When they reached the spot where the car was supposed to have broken down, the car was gone.

As the two got out of the car the soldiers began to attack them and Gassen succeeded in breaking away and ran. He is said to have reported he looked back and saw the boys continuing their beating of Beggon and that was the last he saw of them.

Gassen made his way back to Sweet Springs where he was treated by Dr. Worley. Gassen said the car they hitched the ride in was a green Oldsmobile sedan, but another car, about a 1938 Cadillac sedan, with soldiers, came along and took part in the beating.

State Trooper Pete Stohr went to the area to investigate the incident.

Want Thieves Who Took Whiskey From Vault In Sheriff's Office

MADILL, Okla., May 8 (AP)—Marshall County officers would like to know who stole the whisky from their vault.

They advertised in the Madill Record:

"$200 reward will be given anyone furnishing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons burglarizing whiskey from the vault in the sheriff's office of the Marshall County Courthouse April 24 or 25, 1954. Informant's name will be kept in strictest confidence."

Liquor is illegal in Oklahoma, and sheriffs store seized contraband for sale later to out-of-state bidders.

Propose Commie Blockade

Dulles Confers With Munro to Push Ahead Plans for Conference Of Alliance Members

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, following up an unusual Saturday meeting of the National Security Council, today opened diplomatic talks on proposals for a Southeast Asian alliance to block the Communist drive in Indochina.

Dulles is prepared to urge potential Southeast Asian allies—and the U. S. Congress—to undertake firm pledges of action against Red aggression in the strategic area. These pledges could lead to intervention in the war by the United States and other members of the coalition.

Dulles conferred today with New Zealand Ambassador Leslie Knox Munro, to push forward plans for a conference of proposed alliance members as quickly as possible. Munro is New Zealand's deputy member on a three-power Southwest Pacific Alliance which presumably will be one of the cornerstones of the projected new coalition. The Alliance is composed of the United States, Australia and New Zealand.

Dulles also talked with British Ambassador Sir Roger Makin about the situation in Southeast Asia.

The Security Council meeting at the White House under President Eisenhower's chairmanship lasted 90 minutes. It brought together the President, Dulles, Defense Secretary Wilson and other high administration officials for a new look at the Indochina crisis in the light of the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

There appeared to be increasing hope that instead of shattering French Union morale, the Red capture of the Viet Nam fortress would harden the resolve to stand firm against Red pressures.

The fortress fell on the eve of the opening of Indochina armistice talks at Geneva. French and American sources here said they thought the Geneva position of Foreign Minister Ridault would be so strong as to firmly resist any cease fire agreement on terms that would hand the Indochinese state of Viet Nam over to the Communists. These informants recognize that the only alternative may be to carry on the war.

The conference which Dulles is trying to arrange apparently would be concerned primarily with joint action for securing as much of Indochina as possible from Communist conquest in the shortest possible time. That is the purpose of the first stage of his united action diplomacy which, in a later second stage, is expected to produce a mutual defense pact embracing 10 or 12 countries.

There is some evidence that the United States and Britain may not yet have resolved all differences on how to organize the initial round of what are expected to be military talks on creation of a united front. Press dispatches from abroad have indicated the British are thinking primarily in terms of a meeting of the United States, Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand. But the United States thinking embraces a large group that would include the Philippines, Thailand, the Indochinese states of Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam and possibly Burma and Pakistan.

North Side Citizens Assn. Plans Hubbard Park Flower Bed

The North Side Citizens Association has built a concrete border around the flag pole in Hubbard Park and is preparing a flower bed for inside the large circle to make it a beauty spot for the city.

A report of this most recent activity of the association was made Friday night at a meeting of the membership at the American Legion Hall by Ira Cason, chairman of the park and recreation committee. He said $55.50 had been expended on the project by the committee which also includes these other members: W. Cason, Elmer Draffen and Albert Parks.

Mrs. Mark Powell, chairman of the ladies' division, was authorized to proceed with the planting of the flowers in the bed.

A report was also made at the meeting that $117 was cleared from the recent Easter cantata which was presented as a benefit program to secure playground equipment for Hubbard grade school.

Oscar Lawson, president, who presided at the meeting, reminded the organization of the Cerebral Palsy Fund campaign and asked members to give to this at the next meeting.

A nominating committee was appointed to report at the next meeting, June 4, at which time the annual election of officers will be held. On the committee are: Dr. A. R. Maddox, Rev. Parker, Mrs. M. Boggs, Laurence Kerr and Loretta Emerson, superintendent of Hospital No. 2.

The membership committee reported five new members.

By Merle Vaughan
Pettis County Agent

Pettis County wheat farmers stand to lose at least $140,600 on their 1954 wheat crop if they do not provide a place on their farm to store it.

The reason is that most normal storage facilities are full of old crop wheat. Wheat farmers cannot take advantage of the Community Credit loan unless they have a place to store the grain.

47 Cent Spread Last Year

In 1953 most elevators agreed to store one half the farmer's crop if he would sell the other half to them at the market price at that time. There was 185,000 bushels of Pettis County wheat so stored at the Commodity Credit loan rate of about $2.17 per bushel (cost of storage, 12c, was subtracted from the $2.29 loan rate). Cash wheat dropped as low as $1.70, so the difference was 47c for some producers. If all the other half (185,000 bushels) was forced to sell at that price it would have amounted to a loss of $86,850.

On the other hand, a total of 54,000 bushels was stored on farms in the county at the full loan rate of $2.29. One 900 bushel loan was called early because of meal moth infestation, but no reduction in quality was found. An inspection of the other 53,100 bushels has been made in the last 30 days and all of it is in good shape.

Metal Bins Available

Now back to 1954. I have heard there will be very little warehouse storage available this year. However, metal bins can be purchased that provide very good storage. A 1,000 bushel bin will cost around $400 to $450, set up on a foundation on the farm. That would be a cost of 40c to 45c per bushel and there is a good likelihood that the savings in wheat would pay for it in one year.

Actually, the wheat does not need to be stored for a long time. Usually the market regains strength a few months after harvest. Last year soybeans were $2.32 in September, $3.36 in March and higher now.

Farm Storage Desirable

Farm storage is desirable for a number of reasons:

1. Many Missouri farms do not have enough grain storage for efficient operation of the farm.

2. Farmers who have cash grain for sale should have enough space to store one year's crop of all grains. This will enable him to take advantage of any price support programs.

3. Livestock farmers who find it necessary to buy grain should have enough storage space for one year's supply for all livestock. This will enable the livestock grower to buy needed grains during harvest when prices ar low.

Government Will Help

1. Farm storage facility loans. C.C.C. loans through local banks or direct through the County Agricultural Stabilization Committee can be up to 80 percent of the cost with four years to pay and an interest rate of four percent.

2. Loans are also available through C.C.C. for drying equipment up to 75 percent of the cost assembled on the farm. Repayments are in three annual installments, also bearing 4 percent interest.

3. Tax amortization deduction, under this provision, the federal income taxpayer may elect to amortize over a period of five years the depreciable cost of grain storage facilities constructed after Dec. 31, 1952.

Labor Unions Ask Spending Program Taxes Reduced

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Labor unions today fired a new round of demands at President Eisenhower to launch a federal spending program and reduce workers' taxes to create jobs.

The unions said a government announcement Friday that the nation's jobless totaled declined 260,000 to 3,465,000 between March and April, the first drop in six months, was merely seasonal. They claimed there was no real improvement.

The union demands for federal spending on public works and housing construction and other new, but more urgent.

The demands came from the AFL, CIO and John L. Lewis' Mine Workers union. A number of other large unions have likewise urged government action, including the AFL Machinists, CIO Steelworkers and others.

There are some variations, but all the union groups are demanding substantially the same thing: Reduced taxes on worker incomes, public works spending, credit and currency readjustments and higher unemployment compensation.

Eisenhower has said it is too soon to launch any slambang emergency program, that it might interfere with a normal recovery, but that he was getting a public works plan ready for use when and if needed.

Union Leaders Will Recommend End to Strike

ST. LOUIS, May 8—(AP)—Union leaders, reversing their previous stand, said tonight they will recommend striking municipal employes return to work Monday pending further efforts to settle a wage dispute which has halted garbage and rubbish collections here this week.

The statement came shortly after the city Civil Service Commission had rejected demands of the 850 strikers for a revision of pay scales "at this time."

Joseph L. Ames, international representative of the AFL State, County and Municipal Employes Union, told the commission here has called a meeting of the strikers for tomorrow afternoon 2:30 p. m. CDT.

"We are going to recommend that they return to work Monday mornin gand stay on the job while we continue to attempt to settle his matter," Ames said.

"We are not promising they will be kept on the job indefinitely," Ames said, "but we do hope to reach an early settlement on our differences."

Ames, immediately after the commission rejected the demands, had said it was "impossible" for the union to call off the strike "in view of the commission's statement."

The commission had said it would request city personnel director R. Elliott Scearce to "review any and all alleged inequities that may be presented to him."

McCarthy Is Final Witness

Demos. Officials Hold Out Against Proposal to Cut The Hearings Short

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—Committee Democrats and Army officials held out tonight against a Republican leadership proposal to cut short the McCarthy-Army row by calling Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) Monday as the final witness in public hearings.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill) said, with the outspoken backing of Sen. Bridges (R-NH), the Senate's president pro-tempore, that he will move in the Senate Investigations subcommittee Monday to supplant Secretary of the Army Stevens on the stand with McCarthy.

Dirksen explained that his proposal would open the way for the committee—if it chooses to do so—to take testimony later behind closed doors from Roy M. Cohn, McCarthy's chief counsel, Army counselor John G. Adams and other present "principals" in the controversy.

Dirksen predicted he will have solid backing from the subcommittee's other three Republicans, although Chairman Mundt (R-SD) said he had not been approached by his Illinois colleague about the proposal.

The Democrats, outnumbered 4-3 gave immediate signs that they would fight the move. They regard it as an attempt to end a public spectacle which they see as politically damaging to the GOP.

Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, top Democrat on the subcommittee, announced in an interview that he will vote against Dirksen's motion if the latter makes it, as promised, at the opening of the 13th day of televised hearings Monday morning.

"All of the accusers and the accused should be heard in public hearings," McClellan said. "They should have their day, just as Secretary Stevens has had. All the principals should be treated alike."

Vice President Nixon was reported active in seeking some means of quick settlement of the controversy in which Stevens had charged McCarthy and his aides with exerting "undue pressure" to get preferential army treatment for a former consultant, Pvt. G. David Schine.

McCarthy, who has accused Stevens and his aides of using Schine as a "hostage" in efforts to halt the Investigations Committee's inquiry into alleged Reds at Fort Monmouth, said he would be agreeable to limiting further testimony to himself and Stevens. He told reporters at Milwaukee that he himself had suggested such a telescoping of the sessions several weeks ago.

Method to Preserve Old Mill Is Underway

BUFFORDVILLE, May 8 (AP)—A unique method of preserving the old Bollinger Mill is under way.

C. A. Vandivort, Cape Girardeau, bought the historic old mill and the 20-acre tract on which it stands, but he plans to turn it over to the descendants of the 20 families who accompanied the mill's builder, Maj. George F. Bollinger, here from North Carolina in the 1790s.

A reunion of the descendants will be held July 4 to form a non-profit corporation for preservation of the property. All will be given shares by Vandivort.

The mill, built originally about 1799 was destroyed by fire during the Civil War. Rebuilt later, it continued in operation until in recent years. The corn-grinding machinery still is in working order.

Crossroads Comment by G.H.S.

Before the above mentioned entertainment started Edw. McLaughlin handed me a program of another Sedalia musical club, with a more genteel title—The Gentlemen's Musical Club of Sedalia. It was off the press of the Sedalia Printing Company now run by Bill Hurlbut, and detailed the First Concert of the 1902-1903 season at the First Methodist church, Dec. 12, 1902.

From among the original 41 members there are only three living in Sedalia: George Hoffman, first tenor; John Menefee and R. V. Johns, second tenors.

Officers of the group were: Rev. E. W. Clippinger, president; W. M. Johns, vice-president; Grant Crawford, treasurer; C. C. Law-

Spring Upturn For Business

By SY MDAWSON

CHICAGO, (AP)—That spring upturn in business—a salve or a cure?

Chicago trade and industry has felt the cheering seasonal quickening. But the surge hasn't been as virile as in some former years. And many say today they can't be sure whether the business and industrial decline has merely been slowed or whether it's touching bottom.

If the slump is leveling off, Chicago will have escaped with only a few bruises, its bankers and industrial leaders say.

But its industrial makeup, they add, because of a high concentration of industries that tend to wide swings in output, sales and payrolls, may yet put the region in some jeopardy in the event the nation's economy proves merely to have slowed its descent temporarily.

Construction is booming. Chicago says it's still underbuilt. Rents are high. Housing prices are firm and perhaps higher than some other places. Older houses are still selling, unlike many cities.

Retail trade here this spring—after you even off the influences of different dates of Easter and temperamental weather—is holding almost as high as last year's.

An increase in the number of men out of work has been felt by certain merchandise lines—particularly appliances. But still high employment totals and consumer savings keep most store sales healthy.

And retail prices seem more stable than in some cities to the east, where price slashing promotions have been ballyhooed.

Steel output is down, meaning shorter weeks for workers—but here the production rate runs higher percentagewise than the national average, because of the transportation cost advantage that steel mills hereabouts have over some of their distant rivals in reaching the large steel consuming market in the area. But new steel orders haven't picked up as much this spring as the mills hoped.

Machinery and electronics makers have felt some spring upsurge and express confidence, with fingers crossed.

Some farm machinery makers are recalling laid-off workers because of a pickup in farmers' interest in money and labor saving equipment. But the output rate isn't back to wha' it once was and many dealers still complain of large machinery inventories.

The packing industry is healthier than a while back. Meat processors say their ratio of profit to sales remains fairly constant and small. But dropping cattle prices and large beef production have given packers the twin advantages of volume sales and easing in consumer price resistance and few, if any, are complaining.

Girl Scout Notes—

Preparations Are Underway For Summer's Day Camping

Preparations for the Girl Scouts Day Camping have been underway since January. They are all looking forward to a week of enjoyment and appreciation of the out-of-doors through progressive experience. Girl Scouts will have fun working, learning and playing together. To do all the things necessary for a well-run camp takes a large number of adults who faithfully and willingly give their time. Camping contributes to the physical and mental well-being of every camper and helps to develop resourcefulness, initiative and self-reliance. Adults helping at camp receive real satisfaction in watching the development of the girls.

The Day Camp for Intermediate and Senior Scouts will be held June 14-18 at Camp Sakajawea. The Brownie Scouts will have their Day Camp at Liberty Park and at Hubbard Park from June 21-25. The more adult help they have the more assurance there is of a successful week of camping. The phone number of the Girl Scout office is 521.

The members of the Camp Committee are: camp chairman, John Crawford; intermediate Day Camp chairman, Mrs. Elmer Dillard; Brownie Day Camp chairman, Mrs. Duane McMullen; Day Camp director, Mrs. William Woodcock; camp maintenance, Harry Lambirth; program aide counselor, Mrs. John Bowman; program chairman, Mrs. Gregory Connor; and training chairman, Mrs. P. Cecil Owen.

On May 8 at the Armory from 10 a. m. to noon all fourth grade Brownies will fly-up. All Brownie Scouts are invited.

Miss Jean Stouffer of the National Field Staff will give a two-day board member training course on May 10-11 in Columbia. This training is being given primarily for the board members in Sedalia, Fulton, Boonville, Mexico and Columbia. The training wi" be given in the Morris Parlor room of the Christian Church from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. Several members of the Sedalia Council are planning to attend.

On Monday, April 12, Troop 25 of Horace Mann school, accompanied by their leader, Mrs. Sam Knapp, went to the farm home of Mrs. Bryon Oswald for a cook-out in foil. They practiced gathering wood for various kinds of camp fires. They also practiced campfire safety.

Troop 41 of Broadway School has decorated a treasure chest for the Juliette Low Tea. They are working on bird notebooks and learning the bird habits.

Girl Scouts of Troop 3 Mark Twain School held an outdoor investiture ceremony Tuesday at 4 p. m. in Liberty Park. The Scouts, standing in traditional horseshoe formation, sang the greeting song to the guests and then sang "When-ever You Make a Promise," a two-part round. Girl Scout pins were then presented to each girl by the troop leaders, Mrs. Howard B. Hill and Mrs. Robert Wall.

Ashes From Secret Papers Cover Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — Residents of Geneva discovered today the secret of the strange "black snow" that's been falling on the city since the Geneva conference began.

It's thousands of tiny pieces of burned papers—secret and confidential documents of the various delegations.

Several times a day security officers of the delegations burn them in specially selected hotel fireplaces. The ashes float down over the city. Residents have lodged complaints.

Missouri History---

Stagecoach King of the West Operated Through Missouri

This Missourian operated one of the most colorful transportation companies in the West after the Civil War and became a financier of railroads and steamship lines. Do you know his name?

1. WHERE IN MISSOURI DID HE LIVE?

A. He came to Western Missouri from Kentucky about 1837 when he was 18 and lived in the new town of Weston from 1838 to 1859.

2. HOW DID HE GET HIS START IN BUSINESS?

A. The Missouri frontier was a land of opportunity for an energetic, ambitious boy. In the boom town atmosphere of Weston this young man tried his hand at several enterprises. He operated a dram shop, traded with the Indians in Kansas, and at the age of 21 owned a hotel. He married Miss Ann Calvert of Weston in an elopement in 1840.

A handsome six-footer, he had very little schooling, but was an expert manager of men. In 1846 the Mexican War turned his interest to the transportation business and from then on it became his most absorbing career.

He obtained a lucrative contract for freighting supplies from the Missouri River region to the troops of Doniphan and Kearny during the Mexican War, at profits as high as 200 per cent. When the war ended he bought great quantities of government surplus mules, oxen and wagons at bargain prices.

During the Gold Rush of 1949 he formed a partnership with a Weston merchant and, armed with a letter of introduction from Col. Doniphan to Brigham Young, the Mormon leader, he launched a profitable trade in Salt Lake City. The partners sent wagons across the plains with goods worth $70,000.

3. FOR WHAT ENTERPRISE IS HE BEST KNOWN?

A. His great Overland Mail Company obscured all his other projects in the public imagination. In 1862 he bought the Overland freighting firm of Russell, Majors, and Waddell for $100,000, then expanded and improved the stagecoach service until he controlled nearly 5000 miles of stage lines. From St. Joseph to San Francisco he conducted one of the finest mail and passenger routes ever run in America. With the coming of the railroad he realized the stagecoach was doomed and sold his staging business to Wells, Fargo and Co. in 1866.

4. WHAT OTHER BUSINESS WAS HE INTERESTED IN?

A. He organized a Pacific steamship line, and built a railroad in Oregon. He made money fast and spent it lavishly, maintaining homes in San Francisco, New York, and Washington, D. C. After the panic of 1873 staggered him financially he speculated in western real estate until his death in Portland in 1887.

5. WHAT WAS HIS NAME?

A. Ben Holladay.

By the State Historical Society of Missouri at Columbia Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary.

W. Virginia Woman Suggests Mouse For State Animal Honor

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The West Virginia Conservation Department, which is conducting a campaign to select an official state animal, has received its first vote.

The choice submitted by Mrs. D. L. Price of South Charleston was the mouse.

Mrs. Price told a department employe she felt the animal should represent the men in the state.

"Years ago West Virginia men were men," she was quoted, "but now they are mice. We have micey men."

"Yes, Christ Gave Us The CATHOLIC MASS"

Perhaps you don't think so, or perhaps you never gave it a thought. And possibly you regard this age-old Catholic worship as mere pomp and ceremony.

But if Our Lord did institute the Mass, is it not vitally important to you to find out? If He did intend it to be a continuing sacrifice . . . expressing Christian adoration, praise, contrition and petition . . . is it not too great a truth to be ignored?

"Bosh!" some will say, "Christ offered Himself on the cross once and for all. Nothing more is necessary." But wait! Jesus clearly indicated at the Last Supper that more is necessary. For after separately changing bread and wine into His Own body and blood . . . signifying the coming surrender of His life on the cross . . . Christ commanded the Apostles: "Do this in remembrance of me."

He was, obviously, instituting a continuing sacrifice in which Christians of every generation might join with Him in the most pleasing act of worship that can be offered to God. In this, as in other ways, the Apostles were to act as Christ's earthly ministers . . . as priests in the external offering of the sacrifice. And when they followed Christ's instructions, Our Lord would offer Himself in sacrifice—the victim would be present as He promised.

This is the heart and core of the Mass, which has been the central act of worship in every Catholic Church on the face of the earth since the time of the Apostles. As successors to the Apostles, the bishops and priests at the Mass recite the very words Christ used at the Last Supper. And when this is done, Christ is present on the altar—offering Himself as He had promised, "for the remission of sins." If this were not true, "Do this in remembrance of me" would be empty and meaningless words, which is inconceivable.

If you would like to know more about the Mass . . . why it attracts thousands upon thousands of people into Catholic churches everywhere on earth, every day . . . write today for an interesting, easy-to-understand pamphlet. We will gladly send it free and without obligation . . . in a plain wrapper. And nobody will call on you. Write today, ask for Pamphlet No. MO-6.

Programs Will Have Shorter Lives on TV

NEW YORK, May (AP)—The life of programs will be much shorter in television than in radio, says producer Lester Lewis.

No TV program "from Lucy on down" will last more than a few years and, he declares, there will be few if any parallels with such hardy radio perennials as Amos 'n' Andy and Fibber and Molly.

Lewis, currently producing Who's the Boss? on ABC-TV Friday nights, says audiences who can see a show as well as hear it tire much more quickly than when they can only hear it.

Further, he says, "as a producer I can make more money with a show that isn't in the first 15 or 20 in popularity — it will last longer."

His Hollywood Screen Test with Neil Hamilton, movie veteran, as featured performer began in 1948 and lasted more than five years before bowing off.

Lewis' current production, Who's the Boss?, has as guests the secretaries of famous people, with the panel trying to guess the identity of the boss.

While the contest is the basic premise, Lewis finds much of the interest in the show has been generated by little-known facts about well-known folks — as related by the secretaries.

An embarrassing experience by Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, treasurer of the United States, was aired by her secretary, Mrs. Grace Abajian.

It seems Mrs. Priest had come to New York to make a speech and while here went shopping in one of the largest department stores. Her purchases were a little more than she had cash for, so she asked if she could have a check cashed. Asked for identification, she could find nothing with her signature and asked the clerk for a dollar bill and pointed to her signature down in the left hand corner.

There was much huddling among store employes before it was decided to cash a check for the lady whose signature is required to make United States currency valid.

Actress Joan Crawford's secretary, Mrs. Gerrie Gruener, related that in taking distation she had to follow the film star all over the apartment — that is, until Miss Crawford bought a dictation machine. Now Mrs. Gruener's chores require less hiking.

Arthur Murray's secretary, Esther Jacoby, says she has a running feud with the dancing master about files. He likes to throw things away once he's seen them.

BOY SCOUT BAND IS ORGANIZED HERE—This picture was taken Tuesday night at one of the first rehearsals of the new Boy Scout band being organized for all Scouts in the city. Practice sessions have been set for Wednesday nights at the Courthouse with the next session on May 12 at 7:30 p.m. Bob Schulz, director, says more clarinets and saxaphone players are needed and a bass drummer would be a helpful addition. Other players will also be welcome. Left to right in the picture are: front row—Tommy Leslie, Waymon Hofheins, Jimmy Elliott, Mike Dawson, Larry Hendricks; second row—Stanley Jones, Wesley Voight, Mike Salmon, Grant Dailey, Dale Burford, Tony Burton; back row, Larry Trueman, Bussy Winters, Gary Holdeman, Gene Self, Arthur Bethke, Bob Kreeger, Francis Self and Johnny Gottschamer.

Red Cross Notes—

Busy Season Ahead for Those Who Volunteer Their Services

The early summer season promises to be a full one for the Pettis County Red Cross Chapter and its volunteers.

The gray ladies, under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. E. Norlin, have received their May schedules, heavy ones, involving the work of 14 members of the group. These women give an invaluable service at Bothwell Hospital, especially those who are willing to work during the dinner and supper hours, at which times their presence is very much appreciated by both nurses and patients.

Mrs. Henry Lamm Ja., chairman of Junior Red Cross, and Mrs. Edgar Knight, teacher sponsor, have announced plans for the Junior Red Cross training center which will be held at Unity Village, Lee's Summit, May 13-15. At this time, two representatives will be sent from Sedalia, Barbara Freund and Barbara Mabry. A particularly splendid program has been planned and the names on the facuty list read like a Red Cross Who's Who. Forty juniors will take part.

Mrs. Laura Chaney, executive secretary of the Johnson County Chapter, Warrensburg, and the Rev. H. R. Simons, chairman of home service, met with Mrs. Herbert Seifert, chairman of the Pettis County Chapter home service, and the members of the staff, Monday morning to discuss the revised home service policy, copies of which will soon be sent to area office for final approval and then distributed to the committee.

Henry Sutton, chairman of the water program, is at work setting up his summer schedule, and getting all set for a season of safety as well as fun in the various public swimming pools. Mrs. L. O. Griffith Jr., will be the instructor at Liberty Park. Mr. Sutton and Mrs. Griffith were in Warrensburg three days this past week for special instruction, and Mrs. Griffith will go to Jefferson City next week for more of the same. She is a qualified Red Cross swimming instructor, having given this service to her former community before coming to Sedalia.

Kansas Liquor Swindler Under Arrest, Topeka

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—A man who is alleged to have swindled dozens of liquor retailers in several Kansas towns through a phony campaign against drunken drivers is in custody of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

Lou Richter, KBI director, said Fred De Elliott, 63, Bonner Dale, Ark., was arrested near Hot Springs, Ark., and returned to Kansas after he waived extradition.

De Elliott is scheduled to be sent to Dodge City for prosecution on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, Richter said.

Liquor dealers at Emporia, Abilene, Dodge City, Beloit, Minneapolis, Cawker City and Arkansas City were reported to have been victims of the fraud.

Richter said De Elliott would go into a town and introduce himself to the sheriff or some other law enforcement officer as a representative of the Police Chiefs and Sheriffs Safety Council, a national organization interested in traffic safety.

Although there is no such organization, Richter said, De Elliott in many instances succeeded in getting "credentials" from law enforcement officers, then proceeded to solicit funds from liquor dealers.

$40,000 Space Ship Promotes TV Shows

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP)—If you spot a stray space ship, it may be Bill Sullivan's.

It made an appearance Monday in San Diego. Just before leaving, Sullivan stopped for a shave. The space ship left without him and hasn't been returned to the studio here. Sullivan said yesterday he'll file a theft report in San Diego.

John Vandekamp Heads Sedalia Park Board

Sedalia's new park board, meeting this week for the first time, elected John Vandekamp as president. Ed. L. Ringen and Elmer Lane were installed as new members to serve with Vandekamp, Bill Bunn and Frank Mehl, holdover members.

A vote of appreciation was given for the services of the park board members who have left the board this year. They were thanked for the work they have done and the time they have given to the park system.

Mrs. J. F. Schumacher Again Heads B&PW Club for Year

At the regular monthly meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club Thursday night, Mrs. Jean F. Schumacher was re-elected by acclamation as president for the coming year.

Other officers on the slate that was adopted include: Mrs. Anna Bagby, first vice president; Miss Doris Stott, second vice president; Miss Anne Reed, secretary; Miss Anna Marie Raines, treasurer; Mrs. Everett Stumpf, auditor; Mrs. Frieda Nelson, parliamentarian; Mrs. Marian Knight, chaplain, Miss Mary Ellen Merrill, sargeant-at-arms; Mrs. P. V. Scotten, custodian, and Mrs. Lily Thomas, historian. These officers will be installed at the regular business meeting in June.

The nominating committee was composed of Miss Hazel Barnett, chairman, with Miss Emilie Brunjes and Mrs. Ivan Berry.

The program for the evening was presented by the scholarship committee with rMs. Florence Elliott, chairman, presiding. Chester O'Bannon, who recently placed first in the state music contest, sang two numbers, "The Horn" and "Secret Love", accompanied by Doris Stott. As an encore the last number was repeated, by request.

Miss Anna L. Sawford, of the Smith–Cotton High School English department, presented four of her debating students who took as their question, "Resolved: that the President of the United States should be elected by the direct vote of the people". Upholding the affirmative were Marilyn Garrett and Gloria Williams and the negative was represented by Lydia Furnell and Kay Carrel.

The affirmative stressed that the present system was undemocratic, and a poor example for us to set for the rest of the world; the minority vote in the states was lost, ratio of electors was not proportioned fairly and more interest could be created and more would vote if they knew their direct vote would count.

The negative took the stand that direct voting would cause fraud and an upswing of splinter parties to the extent that no one would get a majority. The present system, they stated, assures states' rights, keeps the president and vice-president on a single ticket. As a counter proposal they presented the plan of doing away with the unit rule of the electors casting their vote, and have them cast in the proportion to which the popular vote was cast. This, they maintained, would bring up the voting average and would eliminate the threat of splinter parties.

This was a non-decision debate.

Once, annually, at the scholarship meeting everyone is given an opportunity to contribute to the Memorial Scholarship Fund. Proceeds in this fund are used as a loan to send desiring and worthy young women to institutions of higher learning. Contributions were made in memory of club members whose names are engraved on a bronze tablet that hangs in the Public Library, and in memory of loved ones.

As an additional project of the club, it was voted to award $100 to a deserving high school girl, this award to be presented in the near future.

National Music Week was recognized and Mrs. Matison of New York Community Concert Association gave a brief outline of what Community Concert is and how it operates. Mrs. Matison is a past president of a BPW club in a neighboring state.

Mrs. Jean F. Schumacher

Mrs. Gregory Connor, of the Cerebral Palsy Association, outlining the work of their association, explained in brief what the affliction was, the three main types and stressed the need of therapy in Pettis County.

William P. McCune, president of the Pettis County Farm Bureau, explained the safety program the county organization is conducting May 10-14. Members were invited to pass through the safety lane at Liberty Park for a free check-up on front end alignment, brakes and headlights. Those cars not passing the test should be brought up to inspection and then may pass through the test for a second time. When a car meets the requirements, a sticker signifying such is placed on the windshield. This program has been used in other counties as a measure to counteract many of the highway accidents.

Guests of the evening were: Mrs. Ross C. Ewing and Mrs. W. D. Steele, with Mrs. M. C. Ervin; Mrs. Edna Leffler with Miss Adeline Geiger; and Mrs. Ralph Carrel with Mrs. E. E. Colbert.

Committee members, in addition to Mrs. Elliott, are: Mrs. E. E. Colbert, Mrs. Marian Knight, Mrs. Jerry Brown, Mrs. Regina Franken, Miss Carrie Gilkey, Miss Georgia Glokaris, Mrs. Lily Thomas, Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson and Mrs. Murrell Hayden.

Giant Music Festival This Week at Enid

ENID, Okla., May 8 (AP)—Enid will be a giant, rainbow-hued teen-town next week as 8,000 high school musicians come here for the 22nd annual Tri-State Music Festival.

The musicians will start parading into Enid on Wednesday and the activities will be topped off Saturday with the highlight of the festival, the million dollar parade.

In past years, the crowd witnessing this spectacle has numbered more than 30,000. The name of the parade comes from the estimated worth of the instruments and uniforms used by the participants.

Prof. Milburn E. Carrey, festival manager, said this year's festival is expected to be the biggest in the history of the event, which began in 1933 with 2,000 in attendance.

Those 2,000 were literally from the tri-state area of Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. However, the festival has grown until now participants will come from Oklahoma, Louisianna, Mississippi, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, California, Nebraska, Arkansas and Tennesee.

Concluding the festival will be matinee and evening performances Saturday of the Tri-State band, orchestra and chorus. This feature includes about 400 of the top young musicians and the performances will be under the batons of the festival's judges.

But before the closing events there will be three full days of playing and marching by the bands, choral groups and individual instrumentalists. These events will add points to each school's drive toward the grand sweepstakes award. It was won last year by McCook, Neb.

Judging the various contests will be 17 prominent musical personalities led by Robert R. Bennett, New York; Dr. A. Austin Harding, University of Illinois and Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, president of the National Music Camp.

Other judges include George C. Wilson, University of Missouri.

Truman Gets Greetings From Old Battery 'D'

The former President is in New York where he will be guest tonight at a $70-a-plate dinner in honor of his 70th birthday.

"May you be marching along with us a good many years to come," the message said, "and may the skin of a gooseberry cover your enemies, if any you may have."

Eugene P. Donnell, chairman of the Battery D. Association, said the reference to enemies with gooseberry skin meant those with skins so thin their motives would be easily discernible.

Fitting in with this reminiscent mood is an item picked up from Floyd's Shoemaker's Missouri Historial Review, an item taken from old J. West Goodwin's Sedalia Daily Bazoo, September 30, 1869 which reads:

"A Cellar which opens inside a dwelling should be kept as faultlessly clean all the year round as any other part of the house, because its atmosphere is constantly ascending, and impregnates every room in the house with its own odors. In reality, there ought not to be any cellar under any dwelling."

It looks like J. West was 85 years ahead of his time. Today's home builders seem to have taken up with this suggestion.

Pertinent advice appears in the Kiwanis International magazine:—"Always remember that the best way to get publicity is to earn it. If your club is working to better your community, the club is making news."

Army Agents Engaged in Letter Probe

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—The Army said today that its agents were engaged in an intensive investigation to find out:

1. Whether it was actually an Army Intelligence officer who gave Sen. McCarthy the "letter" quoting FBI material on the question of espionage at Ft. Monmouth.

2. Who he is.

Officials said the law provides imprisonment up to 10 years and a fine up to $10,000 for anyone permitting national defense secrets to be removed from their "proper place" or "delivered to anyone in violation of trust."

If it ever came to a trial there would be a big argument, of course as to whether there was negligence or violation of trust. That would be up to the courts to decide.

Army men for five days have been pressing an investigation concerning the letter, which McCarthy said came from a young Army Inteiligence officer. Although purporting to be a letter from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to Army Intelligence, it turned out be no Hoover letter, but did consist in large part of quotations from FBI memo.

So far as could be learned, the Army investigators still lack evidence that the letter did come from their intelligence files.

Army officials would confirm only that such an inquiry was under way. Presumably it was being conducted either by agents of the intelligence section's criminal investigation division or by the inspector general's office.

McCarthy said he got the 1951 letter from an officer who was "concerned" that alleged Reds were not being rooted out of Ft. Monmouth fast enough. McCarthy contends the officer acted patriotically.

Secretary of the Army Stevens has repeatedly said the Army has no evidence of current or recent espionage at Ft. Monmouth. He has said he acted promptly in cases of suspected subversives.

Bidault Asks For Cease-Fire In Indochina

GENEVA, May 8—(AP)—French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, his voice choking with emotion, asked for a cease-fire in Indochina in the Geneva conference today, 24 hours after the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

He ran immediately into a Communist blocking action.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, pointedly ignoring the French proposal, tied the conference up in a procedural knot by asking for the admission to the talks of Red representatives of Laos and Cambodia—part of Indochina not directly connected with the current fighting.

France has called the so-called Communist government of Laos and Cambodia "phantom regimes" France and the United States promptly rejected the idea of issuing any bid to them.

Molotov then tried to bring Red China into a proposed Big Four discussion of the proposed invitations. This the United States rejected.

Huang Hua, press spokesman for Red China, said Bidault's proposals for a cease-fire were "not reasonable." He said they amounted to "dissolving" the Communist-led Vietminh army and the "resistance governments of Khmer Cambodia and Pathet-Laos Laos."

The United States reserved its position on the Bidault proposals. An official spokesman said the United States would "do its part toward achieving restoration of peace in the discussions which follow."

Bidault addressed the representatives of the nine delegations which make up the Indochina section of the Geneva conference as they assembled for the first time in a small room in the old League of Nations Building. He asked that the cease-fire be guaranteed by the nine delegations.

Truman Urges Ike 'Become Master in His Own House'

NEW YORK, May 8—(AP)—Former President Truman tonight called on President Eisenhower to assert himself as "master in his own house" and stem the "growth of hysteria" about communism.

Without referring directly to the McCarthy - Army hearings, Truman declared the country cannot afford an attack on presidential powers by "today's version of the radical Republicans" of post-Civil War days.

In a speech prepared for a dinner honoring his 70th birthday, Truman said all the people look to the President when they are beset by fears, and added:

"It is to the President that they look to say a firm 'No' to those who wish to destroy others through fear and innuendo: to defend the unjustly accused and show in the executive branch of the government that the ancient principles of fair play and decency prevail.

"By such deeds and acts the presidency can reassure the nation and stem the growth of hysteria.

"Again, we see today history repeating itself as the legislative branch of the government, under the overshadowing fear of communism, expands its functions and activities into the very center of the power of the executive branch.

"The President is responsible for the administration of his office. And that means for the administration of the entire executive branch.

"Our government cannot function properly unless the President is master in his own house and unless the executive departments and agencies of the government, including the armed forces, are responsible to the President."

Unless the President takes a firm stand against encroachment by the legislative branch, Truman said, it is "impossible to have orderly government."

"The legislative power will ooze into the executive offices," he said. "It will influence and corrupt the decisions of the executive branch. It will affect promotions and transfers. It will warp and twist policies.

"It raises the threat of legislative dictatorship."

Declaring "our country has acted firmly and resolutely to hold Communist imperialism in check," Truman added:

"Nevertheless, concern has created fear and fear has been played upon by persons who see it in an easy way to influence votes. There is no dispute any more that this unreasonable fear exists. The leaders of both parties have acknowledged it.

"I hope and believe that we will pass through this present crisis successfully. I do not believe that the Congress will succeed in taking over the functions of the executive if the President presents the problem in its constitutional light.

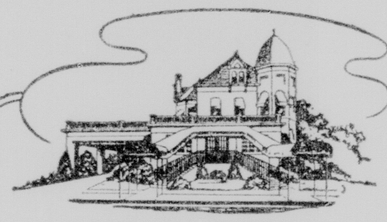

"I have always maintained that the internal security of the executive branch was a matter for the President to handle. President Eisenhower in his first State of the Union message announced the same principle.

"It is to the President that we look to preserve the integrity of the executive branch.

"If this administration under his leadership will act upon this principle, we can look forward to the continuation of constitutional principle, we can look forward to the continuation of constitutional government as our founding fathers intended it to be."

Mrs. Ruth Caston Miller, New York City, an assistant to the assistant to the chairman of the director of women's activities for the Republican National Committee, will speak here Monday. Her appearance, sponsored by the City Republican Committee, will be at a dinner meeting to be held at Hubbard School cafeteria at 6:45 p. m. She will speak at 8:15 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Evelyn Cox is chairman and Mrs. Frances Roberson is co-chairman in charge of the dinner and program.

Long prominent in Negro organizations and activities, Mrs. Miller served in the 1952 campaign in the same position she now holds with the national committee.

A former executive director of the National Council of Negro Women, Mrs. Mueller first achieved Republican recognition as an effective political organizer in the 1950 gubernatorial campaign of Thomas Dewey. That year she was executive director of the Harlem Committee for Dewey.

Mrs. Mueller, who taught for six years in Mississippi schools and was a supervisor in Georgia schools for three, has been Y-teen Director of the Philadelphia YWCA; director of Hope Day Nursery in New York City; director of interracial education at the Brooklyn YWCA and supervisor of Youth Board Centers of the New York City Protestant Council.

She is now director of the Capitol Area Association for the United Nations and a member of the National Association of College Women, the Negro Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the American Association of University Women, Delta Sigma Theta sorority and the National Council of Negro Women.

A native of Liberty, Miss., Mrs. Mueller is a graduate of Arkansas State College and has a master's degree from New York University. She has taken advanced studies at Atlanta, Columbia and Temple Universities, the New York school of Social Work, Vassar Summer Institute and the New School of Social Research.

MIG 15 Fighter Designs Lost To West in '46

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP)—A refugee aircraft expert said today designs for the famed MIG 15 jet fighter were lost to the West in 1946 when American military authorities refused to grant asylum to its German designer.

The swift, deadly MIG 15 was one of the most effective weapons used by the Communists in Korea. The United States finally obtained its secrets last year by paying $100,000 to a defecting North Korean pilot.

Today's statement on the plane was made by Valentin Sokolow, 41, who was identified before the House Committee on Communist Aggression as a high-ranking Soviet aircraft expert before his defection in 1946.

Sokolow told the committee the MIG 15 was designed by Prof. Seigfried Guenther, former head of the Henkel aircraft plant which built crack fighters and bombers for Nazi Germany.

Sokolow said he drove Guenther and a German girl to West Germany in an attempt to surrender in 1946 but he was accused by American military police of being a spy.

After three days of questioning by American and British officials, he said he and the girl were permitted to remain in the American sector. But he said he was convinced that Guenther was returned to the Russians.

Rep. Charles J. Kersten (R-Wis), chairman of the committee, said after Sokolow's testimony that an effort would be made to learn the identities of military police officers involved.

The story which the refugee told the committee was one of danger, intrigue and even love. Asked where the German girl was at present, he turned to a pretty, brown-haired spectator at the hearing and identified her as his wife.

'Mom' Brudda Expects About 200 Today

DETROIT, May 8—(AP)—Mom Grubba's house likely will be full of warm and grateful hearts tomorrow, Mother's Day.

She expects many of her "200 children" to stop by.

For years Mrs. Ida Mom Grubba has taken forsaken children to her bosom, and brought them up.

She says it has been "at least 200—I cannot remember exactly."

Mrs. Grubba has been doing this kindness at a time of life when most people would probably prefer to sit back and rest.

Her husband, Emil, enjoys it, too.

The Grubbas, whose own two daughters are grown and married, live on a 59-acre farm west of Flat Rock, south of here. Since 1930 they have been taking in children.

It was that year that Mom took in her first two tots.

"They were tiny babies," she said, "and lived with me a year or two. Then the mother took them back. I missed them so much I looked for more."

She found them. Ultimately, Mrs. Grubba attained official status. The Wayne County Social Welfare Division boards some homeless children with her.

Presently, she has three—Bobby, 7, Donna, 9 months, and Skippy, 7 months.

ABW Club Will Sponsor 'Make It From Wool'

The Sedalia Chapter of American Business Women's Association met May 4 at the Bothwell Hotel when Miss Mary English, librarian at the Public Library, presented a very interesting talk on "The Library."

She told about the very important role the public library has in a community, offering an opportunity to both young and old, rich and poor to find different information. It also gives opportunities for self-education and for recreation.

C. W. Baker, soloist, sang "The Dert Song," "Caro-mio-ben" and "Dedication." Miss Jessie White, second grade teacher at Washington School, gave a vocational talk.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Mary Maddox. This organization will sponsor the district Make It From Wool contest which will be held June 1 at the First Methodist Church. Plans were made to entertain the contestants during their stay in Sedalia. Along with the contest there will be a fashion show in the afternoon, to which the public is invited.

After the business meeting a short social hour was enjoyed. The main attraction was a May basket contest. Members of the organization brought May baskets which were judged for first, second and third places.

The next meeting will be held at the Bothwell Hotel June 1 at 6:30 p.m.

Ft. Leonard Wood May Become Permanent Post

FT. LEONARD WOOD (AP)—Maj. Gen. Albert C. Lieber, commanding general here, is optimistic that this Army post may get a permanent status.

"I was working to have the post designated as a permanent one before I was assigned here," he told newsmen yesterday.

Besides serving as a reception station, Ft. Leonard Wood is the Army's only engineer replacement training center. It is the largest military post in the Fifth Army Area, with about 30,000 troops.

Noted Zoologist Starts Research Work On Severity of Burns

POMONA, Calif. (AP)—A zoology professor, convinced that a fast diagnosis of the severity of burns could save many lives each year, is attempting to perfect a swift way to tell how badly a person has been injured by fire.

The research work of Dr. Miles D. McCarthy at Pomona College is being aided by the United States Army because his findings may help combat the after-effects of burns in an atomic war.

Dr. McCarthy said today that annually more than 5,000 persons die from burns in this country. Penetration of the burn often is difficult to determine and the diagnosis often results in losing valuable time before starting treatment.

Dr. McCarthy has found that certain types of blood cells react immediately after a severe burn.

The zoologist hopes these reactions can be used in developing a blood test which could quickly disclose the severity of the burns and thus aid in starting adequate treatment sooner.

J. Edgar and the F.B.I.

Through Tenure of Five Presidents, Hoover Has Headed G-Men; No Sign of Interruption

Editor's Note — Serving through five administrations, J. Edgar Hoover has raised the FBI from a hack - ridden government bureau to the nation's top law enforcement agency. The road hasn't been easy and criticism has been plentiful. Here's a vivid closeup of Hoover on the eve of his 30th anniversary as FBI chief—a man whose personal and professional credo is the same? ". . . And what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly . . ."

By DON WHITEHEAD

Copyright 1954
by the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP) — Thirty years ago—on May 10, 1924—U. S. Atty. Gen. Harlan Fiske Stone summoned a dark-haired young lawyer into his office, peered at him over his glasses and said gruffly:

"Young man, I want you to be acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Thus began the remarkable partnership between J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI, a partnership that has endured through and into the administrations of five presidents and 11 attorneys general, a partnership that has brought recognition and fame, brickbats and attacks—but no sign of interruption.

The graying FBI chief looked back over those 30 years the other day as he sat still long enough for a rare and surprisingly long interview in his office tucked away in the gray stone Department of Justice Building on Pennsylvania Avenue.

It's a quiet, comfortable office. Outside the main door are two American flags and above the entrance is the department seal. A small flag, flanked by vases of flowers, stands on his desk.

On a radio cabinet is a bronze head of Dante, the philosopher and poet. On the walls are framed landscapes of mountains and desert. The only portrait is an oil painting of Stone, who left the department to become a Supreme Court Justice. You sense that Stone was a man who meant much to Hoover.

A mounted sailfish adorns one wall, a 60-pound prize from a 45-minute fight with rod and reel off Miami Beach 18 years ago. As for the desk, it might be the desk of any business executive who keeps a tidy workshop.

Except for an intercommunications box, there is nothing to indicate that from this point J. Edgar Hoover controls and directs a huge law enforcement agency touching the safety, the freedoms and the security of a nation.

Hoover recalled the 1924 Stone interview and grinned. "Mr. Stone was scowling when I came in. He always scowled. He was a rugged, gruff, but fair man. The scowl was a mannerism, and not something in his personality.

"I told him I would take the job only on two conditions.

He said: 'What are they?'

"I said the bureau had to be divorced from politics, with appointments made solely on merit. Second, promotions would be made on proved ability, the FBI would not be a catch-all for political hacks, and would be responsible only to the attorney general.

"Mr. Stone scowled again and said: 'I wouldn't give it to you under any other conditions. That's all. Good day.'"

Then Hoover added: "I never thought in those days the bureau would be the size it is today—or that I would be sitting in this chair as director.

"At the time, I was thinking of going into private practice of law and I considered the job as a temporary responsibility.

"The other day I gave one of our agents his 20-year key, something that always gives me a thrill. He said: 'Mr. Hoover, I'll start my next 20 years with the FBI if you'll start your next 30.' And that made me realize I have been around here a long time. Now I'm beginning to see the sons and grandsons of FBI men apply for jobs with the FBI. That gives me a lot of satisfaction."

Hoover's 59 years rest lightly on him. His dark hair has graved at the temples. He's heavier than the 29-year-old he was when he took the job. But he still talks rapidly and he's quick in his movements. His eyes are black. He is 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighs 180. His broken nose—smashed by a baseball as a youngster—gives his face a look of bulldog tenacity.

In the course of the talk, I put to him a question that has cropped up intermittently from the day the FBI was first formed in 1908.

"Is there a danger of the FBI becoming a Gestapo? What is to prevent the FBI from using police-methods?"

Hoover's reply was quick and emphatic:

"No, there is no danger of the FBI becoming a Gestapo—not if we have men of character in the organization and an alert public opinion.

"We must continue to have men of good moral character such as we have today. We may make some mistakes in our choices, but if we get the right type of men they will refuse to stoop to Gestapo-type methods. I couldn't order my men to ignore fairness, make false promises, use brutality or engage in third-degree methods. They simply wouldn't do it because they're not that kind.

"Public opinion is a great force too. The inquiring attitude of the American press is a magnificent factor in keeping an organization honorable and clean. We couldn't get the approval of the press with unethical and improper methods.

"Then, too, there are the checks and restraints under which we operate, and properly so. The FBI is not an independent entity. It's under the attorney general, and he is the first check against us. We must go before the Bureau of the Budget and justify the funds to carry on our work.

"Then there is the greatest check of all—Congress. I must give reasons for the funds I request, and report on our stewardship. The questions fired at me in congressional committees are without regard to partisan politics. They are incisive and searching. We must have the support of Congress to exist, and the FBI could not become a Gestapo so long as there is a searching attitude by Congress.

"Finally, there are the courts with their check against our procedures. The courts soon would expose the use of improper searches and seizures—and so would public opinion.

"I must explain every item in our budget and how the money is used. I never want any secret fund, lump-sum appropriation for which I don't have to account. I want to account for every cent, because an unexplained fund can lead to abuses.

"As it stands, we don't have to apologize for being in the FBI. This standard we live by has paid off. There never has been a scandal involving the FBI in the past 30 years. We are fair and we are hard. But that's the way it should be."

I asked about reports and insinuations that FBI files are opened to some congressional investigators—and that the FBI "tips off" members of Congress to subversive cases where its own agents can't get evidence for a court case.

Hoover snapped: "I can say unqualifiedly that is an absolute lie.

"I'm pretty sensitive to the matter of our files. There's nothing more important than the sanctity and integrity of our files. I've consistently resisted every attemp to make the raw files available. Data from FBI files have leaked out through other agencies. People like to throw the name of the FBI around. They wave a report and say 'This is from the FBI'—but the report was not furnished by the FBI.

"Some ex-FBI agents are on congressional committee staffs. People think an ex-agent has an open pipeline to the FBI but it isn't true. If anything, we'd lean over backward in order to give no reason for such a suspicion. We can't be responsible for ex-agents. Many fine men have left the organization. But we can't speak for all of them.

"If people ever get the idea our files are a sieve—then there will be a loss of confidence in us by the people, and the country's security will be in peril."

Various people with various motives throughout the years have pictured J. Edgar Hoover as a mysterious and sinister threat to the liberties of the people—and as a superpatriot guarding the civil rights guaranteed under the Constitution.

"I guess I've grown a little callous of criticism," he said. "I'm not as sensitive as I once was. But I'm not so callous I won't fight back if I think the criticism is unjust."

On the political side, Hoover created a flurry when he appeared as a witness last November to testify in the case of the late Harry Dexter White after Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell charged former President Harry Truman promoted White despite FBI reports of espionage activities.

Some Democrats said privately they regarded Hoover's testimony as political—and pro-Republican. There was some questioning of Hoover's motives.

Why did Hoover testify in the White case?

"I always have resisted appearances before any congressional committee except those dealing with appropriations," Hoover said. "The only exceptions I have made have been on orders from the attorney general or on the insistence of the committees.

"Congressional committees can require an appearance. I never have gone so far as to demand that I be subpoenaed. I don't think I should.

"After the attorney general made his speech on the White case, stories and rumors were widely circulated that I had been a party to an agreement to promote White and retain him in government.

"That story was absolutely untrue. The Jenner committee (the Senate internal security subcommittee headed by Sen. Jenner of Indiana) called me twice and asked me to testify on the White case and twice I refused.

"I agreed to testify on the third request rather than face a subpoena. I agreed because I wished to avoid a subpoena and because the story which was going around reflected on me and on the FBI. It was an absolute lie.

"Fortunately, at the time (in 1946) I had written memoranda to refresh my memory of conversations I had with Judge Vinson and Justice Clark (at that time, the late Fred Vinson was secretary of the Treasury and Tom Clark was attorney general).

"At that time it was the view of Clark, Vinson and myself that it was undesirable to retain White. They agreed they would talk to the President about th situation.

I never saw Mr. Truman myself. I had no reason to see him. Later I was informed a decision had been made to keep White on.

"I testified in the White case solely to clarify the role I had played in the situation. I never could have been a party to any agreement about White. The President has a cabinet to advise him and it's not my place to do it. My relations with Mr. Truman, while friendly, were not such that I ran in and out of his office.

"What else could I have done except set the record straight? Some said that I spoke with such vigor I left an impression of criticism. By nature, I express myself vigorously at all times. I'm not a soft, easy-going individual. I play tennis hard. I walk fast. And in my testimony, I spoke as I usually do—with vigor.

"Most people overlooked a statement made by Sen. Jenner before I testified which made it clear I had been called to testify. (This statement was one in which Jenner said the committee had "deliberated very carefully about the advisability of calling" Hoover. It said: "This man is the custodian of the nation's security and as such must be kept out of every other activity. We feel that he should not be called before congressional committees except wherein a situation urgently warrants to clear up any possible imputation of irregularity.")

Then Hoover added: "During Republican administrations I have been accused of being a Democrat and during Democratic administrations I've been accused of being a Republican. As a matter of fact, being a resident of Washington, I've never voted and I have no politics.

"At least I've never been accused of being a Communist."

J. Edgar Hoover

Hoover rarely steps into the limelight but when he does he is outspoken—particularly in cases where he thinks there has been a slur against himself on the FBI.

His speeches crackle with outbursts against Communists and Fascists; "pseudo-liberals"; parents who fail their children; "sob sisters" and "moo-cow" sentimentalists who pamper criminals; lawbreakers; and "midget politicians."

His sense of what is right and what is wrong leaves few gray areas in his own standards of conduct. There is a strong religious streak in his character and to him God home and country are sacred things which must be protected from evil forces.

"I find my own rules of conduct laid down in the 6th Chapter, 8th Verse of Micah," he said. This says ". . . . And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

"That is a philosophy all of us should have—a philosophy that brings a deep sense of humility. We need it in the country as well as the FBI."

And this philosophy encompasses also a stern code for the wrongdoer. Hoover said: "We must pay the penalty for the wrongs we do."

The ministry almost won young Hoover to its ranks before the FBI claimed him, partly because of the religious atmosphere of his home and the influence of a young Presbyterian minister.

Hoover was born Jan. 1, 1895, only a few blocks from the national Capitol, the youngest of four children. His father worked with the Coast and Geodetic Survey. His mother was a grandniece of a one-time Swiss consul general to the United States. The family was a tightly knit group, and the warm home life left its mark on Hoover.

"I strongly believe the molding of character begins at home," the FBI chief said. "There's the best place to reverse the trend in juvenile delinquency.

"In my own home, I never remember having a meal that wasn't opened by someone saying grace. I just grew up that way.

"We didn't have much—but we had everything we needed. I always had to go to Sunday school. I was given a little testament for attendance on 52 consecutive Sundays—and it was one of my treasures. I still have it.

"In those days, we always read from the Bible so that our home environment developed a deep religious belief and faith.

"As a youngster, I transferred to the First Presbyterian Church, where the pastor was Dr. Donald Campbell MacLeod. He was a virile, wide-awake man with a lot of punch. He'd come out and referee our ball games. If a 'damn' popped out he'd ignore it. He was interested in us and he wasn't sanctimonious. He almost induced me to go into the ministry. He was the kind of man I wanted to be.

"And my father was a strong influence too. I used to look forward to Saturday afternoons. That's when I'd go to my father's office and wait for him to get through work—then we'd come home together. He was close to me as a pal."

In Central High School, young Hoover was known as "Speed"—not because he was particularly fleet of foot, but because he always wanted to get things done in a hurry. He reported for football but Coach Biff Jones—later to become a big name in American football—took one look at the 98-pound youth and told him:

"There's no place for you, son. Why don't you try something else?"

Hoover did. He jumped into debating and became captain of Company B, the best drilled cadet company in the school. He was elected colonel of the cadet corps—but declined the honor so he could remain with Company B.

To this day, his old high school friends call him "Speed." To friends of a later day he is known as either John or Edgar.

"AND THE TEARS FLOWED . . ." Everything was watery down at Pier 90 in New York City and Leslie James Neale III, returning from a European visit, added his share. His mother didn't want her 17-month-old youngster to get lost, so she tied him to a trunk.

The pull of law won out over the ministry. Hoover was graduated from George Washington University in 1916 with a bachelor of laws degree and he won his master of laws degree a year later. He was an honor student.

Young Hoover figured the Department of Justice was the place where he could get the greatest amount of experience in the shortest possible time. He took a job as clerk—and seven years later was on his way to becoming one of the best known names in the United States.

Before he took over, the FBI was an inept, politics - ridden agency tainted by past government scandals. There was no requirement—as there is today—that FBI agents must be lawyers or accountants with a background of good moral character. They got their jobs by political pull. They had no authority to carry weapons (that authority was not given until 1934). There was no fingerprint file, no crime detection laboratory, no training program—and no prestige.

As FBI chief, Hoover tossed out the political hangers-on, the incompetents and some with criminal backgrounds.

"I started weeding out the hacks," he chuckled, "and it so happened that the great bulk were Republicans because it happened to be a Republican administration in office. This brought down on my head the outraged cries of politicians and appeals over my head to the attorney general.

"I remember there was one agent who was a ward-heeler type. I transferred him to the Southwest to get him as far away from his political ties as possible. A very powerful senator came to me to protest.

"I told the senator I was sorry, but that the agent had to accept the transfer and I told him why.

He took the matter up with the attorney general. Fifteen minutes later I got a call to come to Mr. Stone's office.

"He said: 'Hoover, what are the facts in this case?"

"I told him and Stone said: 'I think you are not on entirely sound grounds.'

"I said to myself, 'Well, here's where you resign, Hoover.'

"Then Mr. Stone said: 'I'm surprised you didn't fire the fellow at once.'

"In all cases, Mr. Stone supported me. I think of him as the mentor and sparkplug of the FBI. After he became a justice on the Supreme Court, Mr. Stone often would stop by to chat and, as he said, to 'get an accounting' from me."

Hoover and his FBI zoomed to national prominence in the gun-blazing gangster era of the early '30s, and with the solution of the Lindbergh kidnap case. He made the FBI a center for scientific crime investigation and brought a prestige to law enforcement that never had been attained before in this country.

Looking back on these days, Hoover said: "Praise came to the FBI after the pendulum of public opinion had swung from the early days of disrespect. But I know the pendulum of public opinion can swing just as rapidly back the other way unless we conduct ourselves properly.

"The only sound growth is to build on proper ground. The FBI had a great record in the kidnap era. It was a hard era. Our men at the time were not equipped by training or by law. Some of our men were killed in gun battles.

"You can't go through gunfire without a deep sense of humility and without knowing there is a supreme being watching over you."

And then he said: "My goal has been to make law enforcement a profession, a respected profession like the medical and legal professions. You can't be proud of your profession unless you have a standard of conduct and action that demand respect.

"I don't put much faith in statements about what somebody is going to do. It's better to wait and talk about your accomplishments. That's why we don't announce in advance our plans. Let's have constant, consecutive pressure on crime in the American way—without framing, without the third degree and without a whitewash.

"I'm happy to say we've made progress in the country in divorcing law enforcement from political influence. Where there is political influence in enforcement, it is reflected in graft, corruption and incompetency.

"In the old days, we were frequently criticized because we sometimes didn't cooperate with local police. There had been a breakdown in the relations between the federal officers and local authorities. There was jealousy and conflict and resentment.

"The reason we didn't confide in local police at times was obvious. I remember once in the pursuit of John Dillinger we were informed he was to visit a dentist in a Midwestern town. We took the local authorities into our confidence. That afternoon a paper came out at 2 p.m. headlined: 'U.S. Lays Dillinger Trap.' Well, he saw the paper and he didn't keep his late afternoon appointment.

"In another case, a police chief was called as a character witness in a kidnap trial. We couldn't take such men into our confidence.

"I started the national academy to break down the feeling of jealousy and resentment toward the FBI men. In these classes, the men have come to know each other, to recognize their mutual problems and how best to solve them.

"Now we are able to work with men who speak the same language we speak.

"But I say this: A community gets no better law enforcement than it deserves. Once a group of Eastern businessmen came to me. They said they had raised money privately, quite a sum of money, and they wanted me to help them use it to improve law enforcement in their city.

"I told them to take their money and go home, and do the job themselves. I told them if they'd take off their coats and apply themselves, put the finger on venal politicians and put men into office who are dedicated to good public service, they'd get good law enforcement."

Today, he lives quietly in a modest home in northwest Washington. His mother and father are dead and a housekeeper looks after the home. His companions are two silver-blue Cairn terriers, Butch and G-Boy.

When the day's work is done Hoover usually dines at the well-known restaurant Harvey's. He's partial to steaks, Florida stone crabs, green turtle soup, popovers, charcoal-crisped hamburgers and angel food cake.

The former proprietor of Harvey's, the late Julius Lulley, was an old friend of Hoover's—and the FBI chief used to turn some of his practical jokes against Lulley.

Once Hoover sent Lulley a letter, purporting to be from a renowned New York chef, accusing Lulley of stealing a recipe.

Lulley brooded over the letter for several days then showed it to Hoover, who clucked his disapproval. Lulley exploded: "Why I wouldn't steal a recipe from that bum. Actually, I stole it from a chef in New Orleans."

Hoover's friends tell of the time in 1939 when he flew to Minnesota in a hunt for the body of Charles S. Ross, a kidnap victim, and for the kidnaper's hideout. Winter snows were on the ground and Hoover, with other agents, had to stop in a small store to buy warm clothing.

Sometime later the storekeeper wrote Hoover that one of the old-timers around the cracker barrel finally had remarked: "Hoover wasn't much as a president, but we got to admit he is a great investigator."

A bachelor, Hoover's name never has been linked romantically with any of the women he is seen with occasionally at night clubs and social events. A close friend says: "John never married because he just didn't have the time for anything but the FBI — and not having the time, he never found the right girl. He's often on the move night and day and he works all hours. He never thought it was fair to ask a girl to share this kind of life."

A good many years ago, Hoover told a girl reporter: "I'm not criticizing the so-called glamor girls. They are attractive in their way, but they don't appear to me to be real or sincere, and they don't measure up to my ideas of what a girl should be. I have always held girls and women on a pedestal. They are something men should live up to, to honor and to worship. If men would remember this and keep them there, married life would be better. I have had that idea about women all my life."

In Washington, Hoover could cut a wide swath in the social world if he chose — but he rarely accepts invitations. His name has never been touched by personal scandal, although he is by no means a recluse.

He turns up at the ringside of big fights. He's an occasional night club and theater goer. He likes to see the horses run. He is an antique bug — haunting the auctions around Washington. He likes jade, bronze and old furniture. Like President Eisenhower, he's a Western pulp reader — but he enjoys history and inspirational books more than any other reading.

But for most of Hoover's waking hours, the FBI comes first — even after 30 years.

Medical Forum Here May 18; Topic: Cancer

The second in the series of Pettis County Medical Forums, sponsored by the Sedalia Democrat-Capital and presented by the Pettis County Medical Society, will be held in the Little Theatre at Smith-Cotton High School Tuesday, May 18, at 8 p.m. The subject will be, "The Facts About Cancer."

Appearing on the panel to answer questions concerning cancer will be Dr. J. W. Boger, Dr. A. L. Walter and Dr. Don Proctor. The program will start with the showing of two short colored sound movies provided by the Missouri Division of the American Cancer Society.

"The Warning Shadow" shows actual case histories of patients who have had cancer of the lung and have been adequately treated and have recovered from the disease. It also shows scenes of Dr. Evarts Graham, famous Missouri surgeon, who performed the first successful pneumonectomy, or removal of an entire lung, for cancer of the lung, and the physician patient on whom it was done.

The second movie, "The Doctor Speaks His Mind," concerns the thoughts of a family doctor in a rural community about his many patients who discovered they had cancer, were treated and cured.

After the movies, questions will be answered from the audience concerning cancer.

The Pettis County Medical Forums are presented as a public service by the Sedalia Democrat-Capital and the Pettis County Medical Society. The public is invited and urged to attend. There will be no admission charge.

Teen Age Robbers Captured After Colorado Holdup

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Star's motion for a bill of particulars on its indictment on anti-trust charges was taken under advisement yesterday by U. S. District Judge Richard M. Duncan.

Judge Duncan said he would rule on the motion as soon as possible and he indicated he hoped to set the case for trial in October.

The newspaper was indicted Jan. 6, 1953 on charges of attempts to monopolize.

Elton Marshall, attorney for the Star, said its reasons for seeking the bill of particulars was to prepare for the trial and to enable the court to confine the case within reasonable limits.

He pointed out the statute of limitations is three years, but that the government appeared to take the position that all transactions back to 1926 were pertinent.

Judge Duncan said that is one of the problems "we must decide and I think it should be decided before we get into the case."

New Night Watch Show Tops Dragnet With Its Realism

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The new Night Watch radio show tops Dragnet for realism in the cops-and-criminal department. It's the genuine thing.

Listeners to Night Watch on CBS Monday nights will hear the actual nabbing of a criminal. The recording was made during an arrest by the Culver City, Calif., police.

Columbia's answer to Jack Webb is an enterprising young man named Donn Reed. A radio veteran, he dreamed up Night Watch in an effort to find something new in radio.

"I remember one day I came out of a radio conference feeling very depressed," he told me. "I said to another fellow that I was tired of rehashing the same old things in radio. If only there was something new.

"That day I went over to the place where I play handball. Another person who plays there is Ron Perkins, a sergeant with the Culver City police. He had his uniform on, and I asked him what he had been doing lately. He told me about some of his cases, and they sounded fascinating. He invited me to come along with him some night."

Reed went in the prowl car one night and found a wealth of material. Perkins talked to Chief W. N. Hildebrande of the Culver City police about allowing Reed to record some cases. Permission was granted, and the project got under way.

"Our first problem was the recording equipment," reported Reed. "To get really professional quality meant using about 1,000 pounds of gear. Obviously that was impractical, since much of the time I had to race after police to get my recordings.

"We finally worked it down to a self-inclusive unit that weighs only 16 pounds. That makes me much more maneuverable. We carry an engineer with us, but he stays in the car. It wouldn't be right to ask him to accompany us."

Reed referred to the danger. It can be considerable. Once he was in close proximity when a holdup man was apprehended. The hood reached for his gun, and Reed hit the deck. He saved himself from danger, but he still was angry. The fall damaged the recording equipment and ruined his report on the crime.

On another occasion, the police picked up a dope addict who confessed the source of supply. This led to the undercover interview with a dope pusher whose devious method of selling the stuff was recorded on tape.

Such exploits provide an exciting life for Reed. Too exciting, claims his insurance firm. "My premium has been tripled since I started this work," he lamented.

Reed spends most of his evenings with the Culver City police. He now enjoys a night out with his wife only about once every four weeks. In addition to his night work, he keeps the radio in his CBS office tuned to the police reports. He knows the code numbers, and when a 'promising call comes over, he hops in his car and hurries to the scene.

Series of Mishaps Fouls School Party

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)—A good time was had by all but with difficulties.

Moundridge, Kan., high school juniors planned to entertain the seniors at an annual banquet Friday night last week.

The principal entertainer, a guitar player, hurt his thumb, so the party was postponed until last night.

Decorations were to be paper streamers, a decorated archway and cutout stars hanging from the ceiling.

Earlier this week the school janitor accidentally burned all the decorations.

Educator Expresses Need of Scientists: Suggests Program

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The president of California Institute of Technology says the Russians have twice as many young scientists in training as we do.

"If our government spent one-twentieth as much for science as for weapon development, we would be fairly well off," Dr. Lee A. DuBridge told the National Assn. of Educational Buyers last night. "A few simple things required to accelerate discovery" are:

"1. Find the good and the promising scientists. This is quite easy.

"2. Pay them enough so they can stay in science rather than go into administration. This is not so easy.

"3. Provide them with the facilities they need.

Durwoods Quit Jefferson City Television Bid

JEFFERSON CITY—(AP)—L. H. P. Co., owned by the Durwood family interests, has withdrawn as a contestant for television Channel 13 in Jefferson City in favor of the Jefferson Television Co., headed by Mrs. Frank Handy, Jefferson City.

That leaves the Jefferson Television Co. and the Capital Television Co. as applicants. A hearing has been set for May 14 in Washington, D. C., before the Federal Communications Commission on the matter.

Stanley H. Durwood, Kansas City, vice president and general manager of the Durwood interests, said his family withdrew in the best interests of the community. It would take one or perhaps two years for Jefferson City to get television with three contestants going into the hearing, he said.

"I know of no one better able to operate a successful television station in Jefferson City than Mrs. Frank Handy," Durwood said. He commented that Mrs. Handy is the daughter of the late Robert C. Goshorn, who successfully operated the News-Tribune and radio station KWOS, which her mother now operates.

"I feel confident that Mrs. Handy will do a splendid job for the best interest of Jefferson City, said Durwood.

Little League To Take Care Of All Players

The Babe Ruth League officials met last Thursday night, along with some parents, and made an effort to solve it's most perplexing problem. A problem of taking care of the eighty-eight boys who are registered in the League and want to play baseball.

The National Rule Book states that "no team shall have more than 15 players" and that "each team must file team registration not later than June 15."

In as much there are only four sponsoring organizations at the present time, the boys had to be divided. Instead of having only 15 players on a team, as was first originally planned and who were "bought" by the team managers, the officials have assigned the additional players to the four teams bringing up the membership to 22 for the present time. This is being done on a temparory basis.

League President Ed Kehde will hold a board of directors meeting next Tuesday night to work out a program which will include all eligible players. Until furtner action is announced, the players will practice with the teams to which they have been assigned.

LOS ANGELES, May 8 (AP) — Parry O'Brien, bettered his own world shot-put record today with a momentous mark of 60 feet 5¼ inches.

Just as England's Roger Bannister broke the four minute mile barrier three days ago, the former University of Southern California giant pushed the 16 pound shot past the so-called 60-foot limit.

O'Brien in his first warmup throw, while still in his sweat suit, registered an unofficial 60 feet 4 inches.

O'Brien, now a competitor for the Los Angeles Athletic Club and the 1952 Olympic champion, performed in a special open shotput event in Memorial Coliseum in conjunction with the UCLA-USC Pacific Coast Conference Dual meet.

Officials said O'Brien's tremendous record was made under official regulations.

On his fourth put O'Brien measured 59-10.

Reese Homers in Fifth As Bums Whip Phils 3-0

PHILADELPHIA, May 8 (AP)— Pee Wee Reese banged a fifth inning homer into the left field stands with one man aboard tonight as the Brooklyn Dodgers shut out the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 in a game called after six innings because of rain.

Johnny Podres limited the Phillies to three hits for his third victory, which put Brooklyn in a hairbredth lead in the National League. Murry Dickson was the loser.

Cape Edges Mules to Win MIAA Crown

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 8 (AP) —Cape Girardeau edged out defending champion Warrensburg this afternoon to win the MIAA track and field meet.

Cape scored 63½ points, Warrensburg 58½, Kirksville 48, Rolla 30½, Springfield 30, and Maryville 7½.

Cape took the first event and led all the way, but pushed by Warrensburg and Kirksville.

Warrensburg entered one formal protest and two vocal ones but all were overruled. The formal protest resulted from the half mile run in which Terry Boone of Warrensburg finished second ony to be disqualified on the grounds he violated the starter instruction.

MIAA Commissioner John Waldorf overruled the protest.

With Warrensburg trailing by only two points and the mile relay on the track, the Warrensburg team was disqualified for cutting in on the curve.

No meet records were broken.

Don Sylvara of Kirksville and Bill Price of Springfield were double winners, Sylvara taking the javelin and broadjump and Price the mile and two-mile runs.

Cape was paced by Ken Hargens and Don Fritz, sprintment. Fritz won the 100-yard dash and finished third in the 220. Hargens won the 220 and took 2nd in the century. Both ran on the winning half mile relay team. And Fritz took second in the broadjump, third in the javelin, and ran a leg on the third place mile relay team. He scored 15 points, to take individual honors and performed on two relay teams that scored 8 points.

Best performances were turned in by Fritz, who ran the century in 10.1 seconds, Ray Rueben of Warrensburg, who did the high hurdles in 15.4 seconds, Hargens, who ran the 220 in 22.7 and Steven Horn of Kirksville, who ran the half mile in 2 minutes, 1.9 seconds.

Cardinals Pound Redlegs For 7-3 Win

CINCINNATI, May 8 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made seven hits good for seven runs in the first three innings today as they pounded out a 7-3 victory over the National League-yeading Cincinnati Redlegs. Stan Musial's ninth home run of the season drove in three of the runs.

Harvey Haddix, survived a shaky start in which he allowed all three Cincinnati runs in the first two innings, to get his third triumph of the season.

The game had to be stopped three times because of rain and it was played in 50-degree temperature.

Started Art Fowler and his reliefer, Ken Raffensberger, were soft touches for the Cardinals.

Fowler, a 30-year-old "rookie," didn't even last out the first inning as the Cards scored three times before Raffensberger arrived on the scene. In that opening frame the Cards used a walk to Wally Moon, singles by Red Schoendienst, Stan Musial and Tom Alston along with an error by Wally Post and a sacrifice fly by Ray Jablonski to get their runs.

Raffensberger lasted until the sixth but Musial's home run was the big blow as St. Louis got four runs off him in the third. Musial's out-of-the-park wallop came after Solly Hemus and Schoendienst had singled.

A single by Joe Frazier and a double by Del Rice accounted for the other run.

After that Raffensberger and then Joe Nuxhall and Herman Wehmeier stifled the Redbirds.

Haddix's only serious trouble came in those first two frames when it appeared for a time as if the Redlegs were going to get him out of the ball game in a hurry. He had the Cincinnati long ball hitting stopped all the way, however.

Bobby Adams' double and Roy McMillan's single set it up for Adams to score as Gus Bell hit into a double play in the first inning.

Missouri Trounces Nebraska in Track Meet

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 8 (AP) — Missouri racked up double the point of Nebraska today, defeating the Cornhuskers 91-40 in a dual track meet that saw one record broken.

Missouri's Frank Dickey cleared 13 feet 7 inches in the pole vault for a new meet mark.

The Nebraskans scored only six points in the track events but out-scored Missouri 34-24 in the field.

Adam Fischer captured two firsts for Missouri, in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. That gave him the meet's top individual scoring honor with 10 points.

Jack Burke Keeps Lead In Greenbrier Open

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 8 (AP) — Jack Burke Jr., battling Allegheny mountain winds, could manage no better than par 70 today, but still held his three-stroke lead in the Greenbrier Open with 201 for 54 holes.

Herman Scharlau of Boca Raton, Fla., and George Fazio of Pine Valley, N. J., moved up behind Burke among the 28 pros going into the last 18 holes tomorrow.

Scharlau came in with the low third round score of 66 and Fazio followed with 68 to give them both a total of 204.

Sam Snead virtually ruled himself out of a chance to win the tournament on his home course for the fourth straight time as he held even with par to stand at 207.

Sports Scraps

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

HERE we go again, and Spring is here. You ask me why? I'll tell you I learned it from the officials of the Little League and the Babe Ruth League, who have already been getting calls from proud parents asking them why their son wasn't put on a team.

It is rather discouraging when parents will not let well enough alone. Let the men who are trying to do their best in getting these two projects underway do their job. They know what they are doing and the "proud" parent hasn't any business trying to butt in and condemn the men who are donating their time and efforts, when it is a known fact these same parents are not interested enough to attend meetings and take a real part in the project.

In the past few days several of the officials have received some, (what I would call nasty) calls from parents about their boy not being assigned to a team. These calls are all uncalled for and should never have been made, it only goes to discourage those men who are willing to give their time, which many are not, to do something for these youngsters.

May I try and explain that maybe your boy may be a little better than somebody else, yet maybe he didn't show up well in practice, so the managers in making their bids for the boys passed over him for the time being. Your boy will get on a minor league team, and as the season rolls on he may be boosted up into the majors and some major leaguer may go back to the farm team.

Your meddling in the program does not help any and could hurt your own son. Not that the men in charge would hurt him, but your interference may cause this boy to get an inferior complex and he would fall back and think, he's good and let up. DON'T DO THAT TO YOUR SON, let him alone, he'll come through. Your help can be put to a good advantage by encouraging him to play on the minor league team, play and do what the manager telis him, let him know if he does what he is told and plays like his managers want him to, then he'll soon advance.

—O—

THIS brings up something else. Last year there was a parent who did more to hurt his son's playing than it did to help. This fond father would tell "Junior" to look for that homerun ball, I'll give you something if you get a homer.

It is known the manager had other ideas when the boy came to bat and wanted him to do what he thought best, but no Pop had said hit a homer, and luckily he got one or two, but he also messed up the team in not following orders from the manager. This is no good.

Maybe if you don't want your son to follow instructions from his managers, the best thing for you to do is to withdraw your son from the Little League or the Babe Ruth League. Just let him play sand-lot ball and give up the benefits he would get through these two youthful projects.

An example of cooperation by parents was displayed Thursday night when the Babe Ruth League officials, after receiving some of these telephone calls and personal contacts as well, held on open meeting, inviting the parents to attend. What happened? Only a very minor representative of parents was on hand.

—O—

SOMETHING else to be brought to your attention before the League plays get underway. This rhubarb of the stands riding the umpires isn't fair, not only to the umpires but to those little youngsters who are out there trying their best to play ball.

After all these men are doing their best, they care not who wins or loses the game. They want to help out by calling the game and they are doing what they feel is best in calling their decisions.

Certainly if there cannot be sportsmanship in the grandstand on the part of the adults, then you cannot expect sportsmanship to be displayed on the diamond by these boys. The sponsors and handlers of these teams are not only trying to teach the boys to play baseball, but are also trying to instill into them sportsmanship.

So let's have more sportsmanship from the stands this year than was experienced in the 1953 season.

Control yourself as a spectator. If one is called and you think it is a bad one, let the little player at the plate do the protesting, small as he is, he'll take care of himself, he doesn't need any rhubarbs from the stands to help him out.

—O—

I don't know when it happened, where it happened, but I have it on good authority that it did happen. Oh yes, it is a story about a well known Sedalia business man who went fishing, caught a mighty fine string, but came home practically empty handed.

Ie seems, according to the best information I could gather from my well known informer, that Garnett Bulkley was fishing and caught a string of beautiful fish—stayed within the limit however, and was well pleased with his efforts.

The time came to display that beautiful string of fish, and Garnett being a true townssportsman, didn't row his boat to his fishing spot but used a beautifully running outboard motor. Now it seems his outboard motor turned into becoming more than just a pusher of the boat, it turned out to be a first class meat grinder. When the string was pulled in, he thought it was mighty light and didn't give much resistance, because as he pulled one hook after another out of the water—all he had on the hooks were the heads of the fish.

McGuire Plays Baseball With Neb. Wesleyan

Foster McGuire, formerly of Knob Noster, now attending Nebraska Wesleyan College at Lincoln, Neb., is one of the big guns with the Plainsmen baseball team. McGuire who after a slow start with the Wesleyan cagers last winter ended up as one of the mainstays and starred with the team.

He sparked the team in the NAIB Basketball tournament last March, in Kansas City, and since putting his uniform in the moth balls, has donned a baseball uniform. He is doing much to lead his team to victory in the Midwest Baseball Conference thus far this season.

Foster is boasting a lusty .526 batting average for hitting honors, with another regular player Mel Sherry who has a hitting average of .500. Of course two other players who are credited with one-time at the plate have responded with a hit each for a 1.000 average.

The Plainsmen have a four-game season record todate in the batting average of .331. This average is based on 52 hits in 157 chances.

In disposing of their first four league foes, Coach Irv Peterson's Plainsmen have scored 50 runs and given up 22 to their opponents.

The power-laden aggregation batting crew has rapped a total of 22 extra base blows in their first four outings, including ten doubles, five triples and seven home runs. The combined efforts of the 16 players who have seen action has resulted in a total of 113 bases off opposing hurlers.

So far this season they have defeated Dana College 18-10 in their first meeting and 18-9 in the second; clipped by Concordia College by a 3-2 margin and beat Midland College 13-11.

McGuire is the son of Mrs. Mary Jo McGuire, Knob Noster. He will be remembered in these parts as an all-star athlete with the Knob Noster High School, starred with Central Missouri College, and played football there as wel as basketball. He entered the service in Feb. 1952 and was stationed at Ft. Riley, Kas., where he took an active part in athletics.

FOSTER McGUIRE, hard hitting Nebraska Wesleyan College baseball player on the Plainsmen. Irishman McGuire is hitting a healthy .526 for his college team. McGuire is the son of Mrs. Rose McGuire of Knob Noster.

Kansas State Chief Denies NCAA Charges

MANHATTAN, Kan., May 8 (AP) —President James A. McCain of Kansas State said today the school's athletic program "is now and has for some time been in absolute compliance with regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA) and the Big Seven conference."

His statement came after the NCAA's policy-making council in Chicago today announced that Kansas State was one of two schools placed on a one-year probation for infractions of the NCAA athtletic code.

Dr. McCain said all of the volations leading to the NCAA's investigation and action today "took place two years or more ago, and one as far back as 1947. All were corrected by the college prior to outside (NCAA) investigations."

The president also noted that in a telegram advising Kansas State of the probation, NCAA President A. B. Moore said the "current administration of Kansas State college is to be commended for its aggressive and positive action in correction of the malpractices and abuses which existed at the college, these steps having been taken prior to the inquiry by the NCAA."

Dr. McCain's statement further pointed out:

That the Big Seven conference on Dec. 16, 1953, upon being notified officially of the NCAA investigation, addressed the following statement to the NCAA:

"In the case of Kansas State College, the charges made by the NCAA concerned violations which were brought to the attention of the conference on Sept. 29, 1952. The initiative in bringing these matters before the conference was taken by Kansas State College. At the same meeting the Kansas State representatives explained the steps which his institution had taken to correct the situation. The conference was convinced that the vigorous actions taken by Kansas State were such as would prevent further violations and that nothing would be accomplished by any punitive action by the confeernce. It is the judgment of the faculty representatives that any action by the NCAA at this late date would result only in injury to the institution involved. There is need to take action to correct abuses which have already been eliminated."

Says Kids Don't Want To Be Catcher

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP) — Bill Dickey moaned about the sad fact that nobody wants to be a catcher any more.

"Kids today want to be outfielders, pitchers, infielders — but not catchers," he said.

Dickey, naturally, can't understand it. As a catcher with the New York Yankees he caught 100 or more games for 13 consecutive years and appeared in 1,789 big league games. On the strength of his work in those games, his 202 home runs and .313 lifetime batting average, he was named to the Hall of Fame at the last election.

Since 1949 Dickey has been a coach under Casey Stengel, trying to teach the young catchers the tricks of the trade.

"Natural ability and hard work are the big factors in making a catcher," he said. "That's why Yogi Berra is as good as he is. Remember, originally he also played in the outfield. He had a strong arm, was fast and could hit. But he was lost in the outfield. So, we concentrated on making him a catcher.

"I think Jimmie Foxx would have been the greatest catcher in the history of baseball if he had stuck to it. He came to the Athletics as a catcher but then came Mickey Cochrane. So Connie Mack shifted Foxx to first base.

"Jackie Jensen, now with the Red Sox but once with our club, might have made a good catcher if he had given it a try. He has lots of natural ability.

"Elston Howard, the boy we converted to a catcher in spring training has the makings. We sent him to Kansas City for more experience."

What is the toughest play for a catcher?

"It all depends on a catcher's ability," Dickey said. "Some guys can handle one type better than others.

"A difficult play is the bunt down the third base line by a fast lefthanded batter. The catcher has to hustle to get the ball, then turn quickly and fire the ball to first.

"Another is the double steal with two fast men on first and third, a righthand batter at the plate and the pitch is low and away. The catcher can't bluff the runner back to third. He must make a split-second decision to throw the ball. It's a judgment play and perhaps the toughest."

Although Dickey will be 47 on June 6, he looks spry enough to put on the mask and pads again in regular competition. He confines himself to hitting to the infield or outfield and doing traffic cop duty at first base.

Jet Action Wins $35,350 Withers Mile at Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — The Maine Chance Farm's Jet Action won the $35,350 Withers Mile today on a sloppy track at Belmont Park. John Barry Ryan's Buttevant was second with the King Ranch's High Gun third.

The winner, ridden by George Contreras, was up near the front all the way in the battle of 11 three-year olds. Jet Action took the lead near the top of the stretch and won by two lengths. The son of Jet Pilot was timed in 1:36 3-5 and paid $11.90, $7.60 and $5.40. Buttevant returned $10 and $6.20 and High Gun paid $4.10.

16 Top Golfers Tee Off Thurs. In Tournament

WESTBURY, N. Y., May 8 (AP)— Sixteen top drawer golf professionals, including every major U. S. titleholder except Open Champion Ben Hogan, will tee off Thursday in the annual "plus and minus" round robin at the Meadow Brook Club.

This is the event which produces some of the best golf of the year but turns into an arithmetical nightmare for the scorekeepers.

Heading the hand-picked field are Sam Snead, who beat Hogan in a playoff for the 1954 Masters crown; Walter Burkemo, and PGA titlist; former Open champions Cary Middlecoff, Byron Nelson and Lloyd Mangrum, and Gene Littler, 1953 National Amateur king now playing for money.

The field is so select that Jim Turnesa, 1952 PGA champion is listed as an alternate. He has to sit on the sidelines unless one of the invited 16 drops out.

Others competing are Jimmy Demaret, three times winner of the fast Masters tournament; Bob Toski, winner of three tournaments on the winter tour; Doug Ford, who won at Miami and Greensboro; Peter Thomson, long-hitting young pro from Melbourne, Australia, Tommy Bolt, Jackie Burke, Marty Furgol, Ted Kroll, Ed Oliver and Earl Stewart Jr.

Middlecoff, rangy Memphis dentist, is defending champion in the novel tournament in which each player matches his score against that of each of the other 15. The championship is decided on points, decided on a plus and minus basis.

For instance, Demaret shoots a 70 against 71 for Snead, 72 for Burke and 73 for Nelson.

Demaret then would pick up one point from Snead, two from Burke, etc. Snead loses ont to Demaret but picks up one from Burke and two from Nelson.

The first round will be played Thursday, following a celebrities tournament Wednesday. Two rounds will be played Friday and single rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Demaret, Oliver, Furgol and Stewart; Ford, Thomson, Bolt and Kroll; Burkemo, Burke, Littler and Middlecoff; Snead, Nelson, Toski and Mangrum.

NCAA Council Puts K-State On Probation

CHICAGO, May 8 (AP)—The policy-making council of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA) today placed two schools on probation for one year and "severely" reprimanded five for violations of the NCAA athletic code.

On probation are Kansas State college at Manhattan, Kan., and North Carolina State College at Raleigh, N. C.

Reprimanded are Seton Hall University of South Orange, N. J., and four schools of the Border Intercollegiate Athletic Conference—Hardin-Simmons University, Texas Technological College, University of Arizona at Tucson, and West Texas State College.

North Carolina state was prohibited under the probation from participating in the National Collegiate Basketball championships in 1955 should it get that far in competition.

But Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the penalties "will not affect the schools otherwise in regard to scheduling or eligibility for NCAA events."

All of the schools were cited for "tryouts" of prospective basketball or football players, but Kansas State was singled out further because of the existence of an organization in Manhattan called the Wildcat Club.

From 1947 to March 1952, the NCAA resolution of probation said, "this organization collected funds in the amount of at least $59,500 for use in part to defray out-of-state travel and the entertainment costs of the institution's basketball and football staff members, and to finance certain other athletic department activities."

The NCAA said also that a "complete and accurate accounting of the disbursements" of the club were not available to its investigators.

Byers pointed out, however, that "the Wildcat Club funds were not collected to aid athletes and it should not be inferred that they were."

The NCAA said North Carolina State has followed "at least since 1950, the practice of paying the transportation costs of prospective athletes to visit the campus."

It said the college tried out mostly basketball players and "to a less extent" football players.

New Sacrifice Fly Rule Helps Big Batters

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP) — The new sacrifice fly rule has proved to be a bigger boon to major league batters than generally expected.

The rule, instituted this season, exempts a batter from a time at bat if he drives in a run with a fair fly ball.

Collectively, it appears to have made only a little difference. Individually, however, it has added many points to some players' averages.

Al Rosen of the Cleveland Indians and Gil Hodges of the Brooklyn Dodgers have reaped the biggest harvest from the sacrifice fly rule so far. Rosen hit five sacrifice flies in Cleveland's first 18 games. Through games of Friday, May 7, the hard-hitting infielder was batting .338.

Under last year's rule, when a batter was charged with a time at bat on a run-scoring fly, Rosen would be hitting .314. Thus the new rule has added 24 points to his batting average.

Hodges has picked up 19 points with four sacrifice flies. His average of .357 would have been only .338 a year ago. Milwaukee's Andy Pafko owes his .306 average to three sacrifice flies. Otherwise he'd be hitting .289.

In all, 95 sacrifice flies have been hit through last Friday's games, 52 by National League players and 43 by American Leaguers. Each circuit has added three percentage points to its batting average.

The Indians lead all clubs with 11 sacrifice flies. Brooklyn, Milwaukee and the New York Yankees are next with nine each. Oddly enough, the Chicago Cubs, who lead all clubs with a .305 batting average, have hit the fewest. They have two, both made by pitcher Paul Minner.

Except for Rosen, Hodges and Pafko, no player has hit more than a pair of sacrifice flies. Those with two include Wally Westlak and George Strickland, Cleveland; Roy Sievers, Washington; Yogi Berra and Gil McDougald, Yankees; Ferris Fain and Jim Keegan, Chicago White Sox; Bill Renna, Philadelphia Athletics; Junior Gilliam, Brooklyn; Monte Irvin, New York Giants; Red Schoendienst, St. Louis and Minner.

Warrensburg Wins Tennis Championship

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 8 (AP) —Warrensburg won the MIAA tennis championship today, collecting 28 points to 16 for Maryville and Rolla, three for Cape Girardeau, and a zero for Springfield.

Norman Brooks of Warrensburg downed teammate Jack Huffman for the singles crown, 6-2, 6-3. They then paired for a doubles victory over Hyder and Graham of Warrensburg. The score was 6-4, 6-3.

Kirksville was not entered in the tennis meet.

Sammy Boulmetis was the leading Jockey at Hialeah this season. In 167 starts he had 32 firsts, 14 seconds and 31 thirds.

Santee Clips Intercollegiate 2-Mile Record

LAWRENCE, Kan., May 8 (AP)— A confident Wes Santee ran the two-mile in 8 minutes, 58 seconds flat, three-tenths of a second under the intercollegiate record, as Kansas swamped Drake and Arkansas in a triangular track meet today.

The long-legged Kansas ace, making his last appearance at Lawrence as a collegiate runner, needed to run under the record 8:58.3 set by Don Lash of Indiana at the Princeton invitational 18 years ago.

Kansas won the meet with 93 points, Drake had 39 and Arkansas 26.

But for two slow quarters of 70 and 72 seconds, Santee, the American mile record holder, might have beaten the American two-mile record of 8:51.3 set by Sweden's Gundar Haegg at Cincinnati in 1943. The American citizens' record of 8:54.5 was made by Fred Wilt at Providence, R. I., three years ago.

As usual there was no competition for the Ashland, Kan., senior and he finished several hundred years in front of his teammate, Tommy Rupp.

It was Santee's second race in a flat two mile during three years of running for Kansas. As a sophomore, he ran it in 9:07.2. All of his other two-mile efforts have been in rolling cross country tricks.

Santee, who holds the American mile record of 4:02.4 ran the first half of his two miles today in 4:24. By that time the field was badly beaten.

"I was feeling good and just wanted to run," Santee commented.

Kansas won all but two of the 15 events in the meet. Drake got two firsts, Bob Miller taking the high jump at 6 feet, 7⅛ inch, and Bob Thann the discus at 144 feet 9¾ inches.

Bill Nieder of Kansas put the shot 52 feet 4¾ inches for a new school record.

Boros Keeps Lead; Prize Money Raised

ARDMORE, Okla., May 8 (AP) — The Ardmore Open golf tournament developed into a wide open scramble at the end of the third round today as sponsor Waco Turner increased the prize money to $31,860 and the pressure mounted in proportion.

Former National Open champion Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., managed to hang onto his lead, although he took a 2-over-par 72 on this tough 6,483-yard Dornick Hills Country Club course.

This gave Boros a 54-hole total of 209, one under par, but he held only a slim lead as five solid challengers moved within two shots of overhauing him in the battle down the stretch for the $7,200 top prize offered by Turner.

Boros, who captured the 1952 Open championship, started the day with a 137 total after rounds of 68-69 but succember to par as he took an out-of-bounds penalty on the 453-yard par-four 13th hole on his second shot. He recovered to birdie the 14th and then matched par on the final three holes.

Pressing closely behind the North Carolina pace setter were five players at 211. They were Bo Winninger of Oklahoma City, an equal favorite among today's gallery of an estimated 5,000; Leo Biagetti of Sandusky, Ohio, tiny Jerry Barber of LaCanada, Calif., Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., and Bob Toski, the 127-pounder from Livingston, N. J., who won two tournaments on the winter tour.

Toski made his move to catch the leaders with a 2-under par 68 after opening rounds of 72 and 71. Barber and Furgol gained ground with 69s, and Winninger and Biagetti picked up some slack with even par 70s as both bogied the par-four 18th hole to toss away costly strokes.

Four other players were still in the running with totals of 212, including Harrison, Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., and national PGA champion Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich. Clark had a 69, Mayer 70, and Burkemo a 71.

Atheism Out For Scientists With Splitting of the Atom

Members of the Sedalia Knife and Fork Club were told Friday night that in this Age of Science there is no scientist who is an atheist, that the splitting of the atom proved for the men of science that a devine being has been guiding all the things which have taken place through the ages.

John D. Craig, a Hollywood cameraman, former lieutenant-colonel in the U. S. Army, author and authority on the age of science, was the speaker at the dinner meeting held in Bothwell Hotel. He was introduced by A. H. Wilkes, program chairman, and Henry Salveter, president, presided.

After taking the Sedalians on an interesting verbal trip to the Artic, the Pacific Isles, to South America and the bottom of the sea, the speaker told of his work in photographing the first atomic bomb tests at Bikini and weaved his talk into the realm of science.

Prior to the atomic bombs, Craig pointed out, many scientists were atheists, but the splitting of the atom proved the first chapter of Genesis and scientists have turned to belief in a spiritual power.

People and nations must also turn to the belief in a supreme being, Craig declared, for in the present day there are but two roads which man can follow. One leads to destruction and the other leads to universal brotherhood. With spiritual guidance, man may follow the latter road and find peace for all time.

He also predicted that in not many generations in the future radiation will be used to make all the food, clothing and shelter which man needs.

In the first part of his talk Mr. Craig related many interesting experiences he has had while taking part in "Danger Is My Business", which was the subject of his talk. As a cameraman for the movies he has traveled all over the world, filming jungle scenes, artic spectacles and underwater life. He related some of the thrills and dangers encountered in these travels and proved most entertaining and informative.

The season ended with a close battle for second place. Country Club won two from the Full Cry as Roseland Meats dropped Sam Highleyman twice. This placed Full Cry and Sam Highleyman in a second place tie with Country Club one game behind. Roseland paced Mid-Continent and wound up in fifth. Bill Snockey continued his heavy hitting with a 591, which gave him a 194 average—tops for all leagues.

Free night next week—two teams are needed to complete this league for next season. Contact Jack Vaughan or the alleys.

New home air conditioners easily installed in any house

The Carrier Weathermaker air conditioner in this closet is about five feet high, about three feet square. Yet it is big enough to heat and cool the average five or six room house.
Carrier Weathermakers
cool your home in summer, keep it comfortable year round
Would you like to air condition your home? The new Carrier Weathermakers* make it simple. Whatever kind of heat you have, they add air conditioning inexpensively.
Carrier Weathermakers are actually so reasonable in price that they've been installed in homes costing as little as $10,000!
A Weathermaker air conditioner will keep your family comfortable all through the year—on the hottest days of summer, on the coldest days of winter. Yet the cost is well within the average budget. Why not have a survey made, without charge, of course? *Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
THE WEATHERMAKER
• heats with gas or oil
• cools with electric refrigeration
• fits in ten square feet
• installs in utility room, basement, closet
• needs no water

Smith-Cotton High News—

Seniors Present Kid Day Assembly at School Friday

By Norman Griswold

Kid Day activities started early Friday for Smith-Cotton High School seniors. The first group, in decorated cars, began parading about 4 a.m. attired in kid outfits.

First item on the program of the day was the judging of the best dressed boy and girl, with awards going to David Alexander and Rosalie McFall.

Next was the Kid Day assembly which was held in the SCHS auditorium. Some 100 individuals took part in the well executed program. Three masters of ceremonies presided. The first was Melvin Jones. The first group to perform was Charles Brady, Jack Isgur and David Menefee. They appeared in the form of an orchestra with a record accompanist. Then six girls, dressed identically, Mary Bridges, Gertrude Dunn, Joan Wheeler, Joella Brereton, Maurine Hoffman and Betty Greer, recited a clever poem.

The Will, an accumulation of articles which the seniors plan to leave to the school or designated students, was read by Gene Watts and Nancy Lester. At the completion of the reading, a song was given by Ada Louise Durrill and group. Donna Richardson and Marvin Bohon sang a duet, "What's Your Name."

Another poem was recited by Lillian Bergman, Anita Miller, Marilyn Latham and Shirley Morris.

The next appearance on the program was three boys, Ken 'Joe' Buhlig, Ronald 'Porkchop' Malone, and Lanny 'Leakie' Benson. They joined in telling the student body an original joke, and sang a song, "Student's, Cross over the Bridge."

The remainder of the Will was read by Lanny Benson, Barbara Grady and Ben Neal.

Don Hofheins then took over the job of master of ceremonies and first introduced 14 girls, all dressed in the same fashion. The group, which consisted of Nancy Vaughan, Judy Blaine, Barbara Arnold, Dorothy Dey, Joyce Witt, Wilma Ash, Joy Harmon, Sara Harned, Nancy Harned, Carrolee Harned, Shirley Burnett, Sue Hamilton, Judy Michener and Rosie Rissler, sang "Santa Baby" and danced. Next to be introduced was a vocal duet, "Hey, Good Lookin'", by Norman 'Legs' Griswold, and Chester 'Chet Babe' O'Bannon.

Eight identically dressed girls, consisting of Ruth Waters, JoAnn Vaught, Barbara Guymon, Janet Satorius, Sandra Gates, Betty Lazenby, Nancy Summers and Elaine Bohon, sang "Gotta Along Without Ya" and danced. The next to appear was Melvin Jones, Richard Smith, Kerry Gentry, Carl Mathews and Bill Williams. They presented a pantomine which was a song, "Kinsey Wrote A Book." A group of girls dressed alike, Dean Hinken, Elvera Kroenke, Doris Johnson and Anna Mae Woolery, sang a song. The last to appear on the second division of the program was Don Hofheins and Shirley Kirkpatrick. The two sang a duet, "A Penny a Pinch."

The last master of ceremonies was Richard Smith. He first introduced five persons who read the senior's Prophecy, which consisted of things which may or will happen in the future to the present senior class members. After the reading, four boys, dressed in decorated diapers, gave an original reading. This group consisted of Darrell Ford, Charles Roberts, Jim Schmitt and Ben Neal. After the reading, Betty Ann Byrd and her group, including Norma Wheeler and Anita Botcher, sang a song.

The next group to perform was nine girls dressed as Scottish 'kids'. The group, more familiarly known as the DEB's sang a song and then performed a dance. This group consisted of Joy Cunningham, Carolyn Heck, Barbara Grady, Nancy Lester, Jeanne Sagar, Mary Peters, Pat Korando and Barbara Black.

The final act was a duet by John Loague and Gene Watts. The two sang "I'm Movin' On." Mrs. Thelma Cook and J. Wiley Atkins were presented gift certificates for their part in serving as class sponsors.

As a farewell song, the entire class sang, as the curtain was being closed, "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

At 12:15 p.m., the Kid Day picnic was held at the J. H. Reine Farm, north of Sedalia. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Reine are the parents of Jody Reine, a senior. Several members of the Smith-Cotton faculty helped in serving, including: Forrest Drake, Edna Snell, Lois Gordon, Ralph Van Der Camp, Pinkney Miller, E. C. Schlichting and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dow. The class sponsors, Mrs. Cook and Mr. Atkins, supervised the outing.

After the picnic, the group attended a Kid Day movie at the Fox Theater.

The final activity on the day's program was the Kid Day dance which was held in the Smith-Cotton Little Theater. Music was furnished by a donated assortment of records. Several members of the faculty were in attendence. The decorations were in accordance with the Kid Day theme.

For Able Representation In Third Ward Affairs

ELECT GEORGE B. JAMES

As Republican Councilman
SPECIAL ELECTION TUESDAY, MAY 11th

To best represent, you should first know the problems and needs of the people you represent. Because George James knows the people of his ward, and of Sedalia, and because he is unafraid to speak up and let those needs be known, he is an ideal candidate to represent the voters of the Third Ward.

George was born and reared in Sedalia, and has spent his entire life in this community. He is 49 years of age and is married and owns his home at 801 East Sixth Street.

For the past 19 years he has operated his own business — The James Electric Company — at 113 East Second Street, where he is an electrical contractor and an employer of union electricians.

He has always given generously of his time and energy in the interest of Sedalia affairs, and has been a faithful worker in his church.

If elected, he would be the only Republican on the City Council, however, we believe that a minority representation serves a useful purpose in safeguarding the affairs of all citizens.

Because he is qualified to represent you conscientiously and ably, he asks your vote and support in the coming Special Election next Tuesday.

Niangua River Once Carried Huge Rafts of Ties to Market

In the days before the virgin timber was all cut in south Camden County, as many as 50,000 railroad ties at a time would be stacked on Roofener Ridge near Hahatonka waiting to be rafted down the Niangua. This area produced a great part of the millions of ties that were cut in the timber lands along the Niangua and Osage rivers in the era of railroad expansion.

Today few traces remain of the huge tie industry that flourished from the 1880s until after 1900 according to an article, "Early Tie Industry Along the Niangua River," by Mrs. Lela Cole of Laclede County in the April issue of the "Missouri Historical Review." Mrs. Cole tells of the long line of tie rafts floating down the Niangua while timber was still abundant in the region. All rafting came to a stop when Tunnel Dam on the Niangua and Bagnell Dam on the Osage made it impossible for the rafts to reach the railhead at Bagnell.

When the tie industry flourished this Ozarks area abounded in virgin oak, sassafras, sycamore and hickory timber and the bluffs provided natural chutes to slide the ties to the river. Here the "rafters" nailed the ties into long "rafts" often comprising over 500 ties. After the trip down the narrow Niangua to Linn Creek, even larger rafts were made to complete the float to Bagnell were made up to complete the float to Bagnell where the "cheap" transportation ended and the ties were loaded on flat cars for the trip to the yards at Eldon.

Much of the tie-cutting was done by local residents who were paid by the piece for each tie they squared with a broad ax. In other areas tie contractors brought in camps of from 200 to 300 men who would remain until the surrounding timber was worked out. The early ties varied in width but later they were standardized at 6x8 inches by 8 feet. To prevent "resales," each tie was branded at both ends by the blows from a heavy iron marking hammer. The brands were registered with the U. S. Government.

With the fading of the tie industry along the Niangua, the once-busy Roofener Ridge area became one of the loneliest sections of the region. Today, Mrs. Cole says, there is not even a mail route and only a single school bus passes over the ridge daily.

Navy Rocket Reaches Heighth of 135 Miles

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Navy Viking rocket fired at White Sands Proving Ground, New Mexico, shot 136 miles into the atmosphere yesterday to equal the single-stage altitude record reached by only two previous rockets, the Glenn L. Martin Co. said.

Martin designed and built the rocket, along with previous Vikings, for the Naval Research Laboratory to explore altitudes previously closed to scientific research.

As in previous tests, telemetering equipment in the Viking flashed data on performance and atmospheric conditions back to ground stations where it was recorded while the rocket was on its 4,000 mile an hour flight through space.

The tenth Viking to be fired attained approximately the same distance as No. 7 in 1951 and No. 9 in December, 1952, spokesmen said.

Magnetized Toys Encourage Cerebral Palsied Children

The lack of muscular coordination of children handicapped by cerebral palsy makes it extremely difficult to teach them to perform many of the simplest of every-day functions. Often it is impossible for their tiny hands to grasp even the smallest objects, let alone feed themselves, tie shoelaces, or wash or dress themselves. Teaching them to do these things is a long and tedious process.

Instruction in these simple skills has been made infinitely more successful, however, by an idea which was originated by a New Jersey woman, and has been put into practice at the famed Children's Rehabilitation Institute at Cockeysville, Md.

The idea is incorporated in an experimental program in which the children are learning to acquire muscular control by playing with magnetized toys and other devices. Miss Ruth W. Brunyate, a registered occupational therapist at the Institute, devised the project in seeking a solution to the problem of training devices which were inadequate because they slipped too easily from the uncertain grasp of palsied children.

If magnets were imbedded in the devices, and the therapy-play was done at metal-topped tables and desks, the problem would be overcome, reasoned Miss Brunyate. Officials of the Crucible Steel Company cooperated by contributing a variety of magnets such as are used in the production of radio and television sets and electronic equipment.

After two years of experiments, Miss Brunyate said that while the techniques of using magnetic devices are not yet completely explored, their value is already assured. Occupational therapy experience with magnetized toys and other objects has shown that palsied children are encouraged by such devices to develop muscular control.

An important factor in the use of magnetized objects is that they help overcome the psychological obstacles raised when the child finds himself faced with manual tasks he wants to perform, but his muscles fail to respond to his mental commands. The magnetized objects impart an assurance because they are more obedient to his touch than the "loose" ones.

Mothers of the Ages

By Hazel Lang, of The Democrat's News Staff

The Holy Mother

Behold! I am Mary, the mother of Jesus. Need I say more? It was I who proved to the world that neither riches, nor fame, nor royalty are necessary to give birth to a child of greatness.

Was I not a poor and humble girl—the young wife of a carpenter of Nazareth? And the angel of the Lord came to me saying: "Hail, woman, favored by the Lord, the Lord is with you! Do not be afraid, Mary. The Lord has given to you his favor and has chosen you to be the mother of a son whose name shall be Jesus, which means 'salvation' because He shall be called the son of God; and the Lord shall give him the throne of his father, David. He shall be a king and shall reign over the people of God forever, and of His rule there shall be no end."

And all of this came to pass. In the city of Bethlehem in a lowly manger this child was born.

And a star of exceeding brilliance shone in the sky, and this star guided the wise men of the east and the shepherds of the hills alike to the baby king.

And the angels of Heaven sang of his glory at his birth and as I watched him die upon the cross of Calvary day turned to darkness and the whole earth trembled until people fled in fear.

There were many women of the Earth from whom the Lord could have chosen a mother for the Holy child, but he sought me for the purity in my heart and verily I say unto thee, Oh, mothers of the ages, motherhood is the symbol of purity and love — if you would be a perfect mother, be first a virtuous woman.

The Pilgrim Mother

I am the Pilgrim Mother—It was that our children might have the freedom of religious worship that in the month of September in the year 1620 we set sail in a frail little ship known as the Mayflower.

The sea was rough and stormy, the captain in dispair on an unknown sea lost his reason and we were tossed about in the raging waters. It was in the month of November of the same year before we sighted land and when we did it was not Virginia, the land granted us by the London Co., but it was the low, sandy shore of Cape Cod. We attempted to sail southward, but we were too frightened and last turned back and landed thankfully in the harbor formed by the hook of Cape Cod.

The winter was long and cold. The lack of food and warm houses caused much sickness and suffering before spring and over half of our little band died of privation.

But spring brought relief. A friendly Indian taught us how to plant corn and despite the hardships we managed to live and grow in strength. We not only established a settlement, but we established also religious freedom in the new country and set aside a day of Thanksgiving to God, in whom we put our trust.

And to the Mothers of all time I say, motherhood is founded upon faith—supreme faith in the Almighty and of love.

Revolutionary Mother

I am the Revolutionary mother. It was my sons who fought to free America from the British rule. It was my hands that made the flag of 13 stars and 13 bars representing the 13 little colonies fighting for freedom. It was I who went fearlessly upon the war torn field carrying water to quench the thirst of the fighting men. It was I who spun and wove the cloth for garments for my family.

I was not afraid of service—it was my life. I was not afraid of duty—it meant my liberty. And so to the mothers of this land of the free I say that motherhood is founded upon loyalty—loyalty and love.

Pioneer Mother

I am the Pioneer Mother. It took mothers of courage in those days. Women who dared to take their children and push forward in covered wagons with sturdy and bold men of that day into rough and uncivilized west.

Days and even weeks we traveled in groups through wilderness, prairie lands, across rivers and streams, over new and uncertain trails into the new west where we would build our homes.

On all sides of us was the nature of this new country in all its splendor, but mingled with the beauty about us was also the ever-present knowledge that wild and hungry beasts roamed the forests and that the steady eyes of the red men were watching for a glimpse of the invading pioneer.

Democrat Pick-Ups

Odds and Ends
By News Staff

THE STORE doesn't have its screen doors up yet, but the day was so hot they just had to have the doors open. With nothing to keep him out, a little dog went in the store and was wandering around. A clerk looked just in time to see him grab a paint brush and dash out and she dashed after him. She ran after him a block before she caught him and took away the brush.

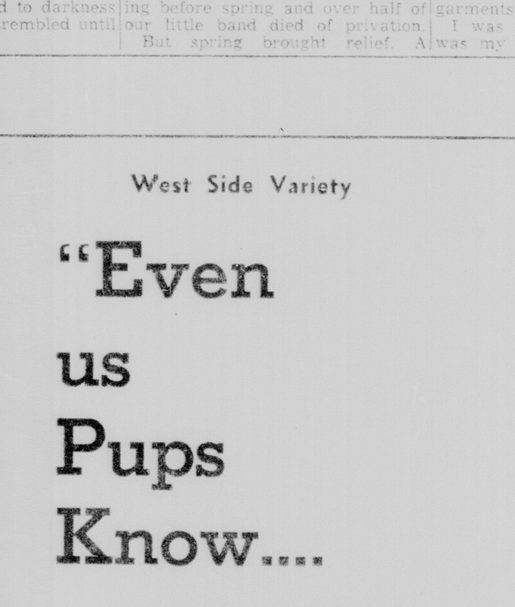

He was really a smart dog. In the first place he knew it was Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Week and after seeing so much publicity on it he thought he would just help out—then, too, he knew his paint brushes. He didn't pick up a 25c brush, no indeed, he chose a $5.95 brush. If he got away with that he would have probably come back for a bucket of paint, but his ambition to be a painter seemed to have been nipped in the bud.

Betty Harms Recent Bride Of L. Pritzel

Miss Betty Jean Harms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harms, Cole Camp, became the bride of Mr. Leland D. Pritzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pritzel, Lincoln, in a candlelight service at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, April 25, in Trinity Lutheran Church, Cole Camp. The Rev. Henry J. Gerike, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. L. C. Schnell, organist, played a prelude of wedding music preceding the ceremony and accompanied the soloist, Miss Helen Mueller of Ionia, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer".

The candles were lighted by Mr. Cletus Pritzel and Mr. Harold Harms, who also served as ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of white satin and Chantilly lace, fashioned with a snug fitting bodice with a sweetheart neckline and long fitted sleeves which tapered to points over the hand. Her fingertip veil fell from a lace covered satin cap. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a bridal bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis tied with white satin streamers. The gown and veil were designed by Miss LaVerne Harms, sister of the bride.

Miss LaVerne Harms, Kansas City, was maid of honor and Miss Mary Ann Harms of Sedalia was bridesmaid. Both are sisters of the bride. They wore identical ballerina length dresses of white lace and net over taffeta, fashioned with a strapless bodice and lace bolero. Their headdresses were white net coronets with red rosebuds. They carried colonial bouquets of red roses and white stephanotis.

Little Miss Nelda Jean Martens, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white net over satin frock and carried a basket of rose petals.

Mr. Alvin Pritzel, Cole Camp, acted as best man for his brother. Mr. Robert Ackerman of Lincoln, served as groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Trinity school basement and was attended by two hundred guests. A three tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, centered the serving table.

Make a grouping of those keepsake pictures of the children or grandchildren by having them framed in the same picture moulding for the entire group.

To give each picture the individuality it deserves, use different mats for each. If the pictures are snapshots of children in sun suits or party dresses; use material like the particular dress in the picture for the mat.

Your Wardrobe

by Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

Summer Separates are gaining prestige every day. Newest arrivals in disciplined broadcloth are most interesting. They require no ironing and maintain their crispness throughout the day. Washable linen-like fabric remains popular and is shown in exquisite pastels as well as black, brown and navy. Get the skirt and blouse for work or casual wear—add another blouse or two for several changes—get the shorts and top for play. Baby cords are better than ever and are shown in blue, tan and red. You will find cute little hats or caps matching these separates so include one in your wardrobe. Use lots of frosty summer costume jewelry. It does a lot to complete your costume and particularly the necklaces are important with scoop neck dresses and blouses.

Fellowship Dinner At Blackwater Church

A fellowship supper was served at the Blackwater Methodist Church Tuesday night with a good attendance. Following the supper, Dr. W. H. Brown, Fayette, led in a devotional service and showed a film. He was accompanied by Mrs. Brown and their son, Bill. Others from a distance present were the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Strafford.

Dr. Brown was with the church Sunday. He was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Shemwell.

The MYF met at the church Sunday evening. After the lesson the group retired to the basement for recreation and refreshments.

Fraulein May Call Themselves Married, By Title, If Over 35

BONN, Germany (AP)—Unmarried German women over 35 years old may in the future call themselves Frau (Mrs.) instead of Fraulein (Miss) if they wish.

This privilege for spinsters was given today by Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder in a written answer to a parliamentary question.

He said it would be legal for an elderly fraulein to call herself frau, since it is not a title or personal description according to the law.

Senior-Captain Ethelmae Bilton

Salvation Army Missionary Here Wednesday Night

Senior-Captain Ethelmae Bilton, now on homeland furlough from Salvation Army missionary service in Northern Rhodesia, will conduct a special service at The Salvation Army, 120 East Fifth, Wednesday, May 12, at 7:30 p. m.

While stationed in Northern Rhodesia Captain Bilton was a member of the teaching staff at Cikankata Institute which at present accommodates 175 day scholars and 185 "boarding" students.

Her teaching responsibilities at Cikankata included such subjects as English, arithmetic, science, geography, history, civics and Bible. In addition, the captain devoted evenings and weekends to classes in religious instruction, having the oversight of the Army's corps attached to the institute. Captain Bilton carries responsibility, also, for teacher training classes offered to students who have finished their schooling through the eighth grade and who are interested in becoming teachers.

Ethelmae came into contact with The Salvation Army in Chicago Heights, Ill., when the local corps was enlisting new Sunday school members through an intensive campaign in the Middle West.

Blackwater Church Has Party for the Pastor

The Federated Church of Blackwater entertained with a surprise party April 30 for their pastor, the Rev. N. O. Wetherell, whose birthday is April 29.

As a ruse, Rev. Wetherell and family were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Thornton for supper, but were requested to stop at the W. W. Community Center for a business meeting of the church. When they arrived at the Community Center the group has gathered there, where the party was held. A basket supper was served.

The table held for its centerpiece a birthday cake and a plastic tree filled with paper and silver money which was a gift from the congregation. The group enjoyed singing and Elmer Zimmerman, Hardeman, magician, entertained with his magic tricks.

Deborah Kerr Happily Plays Married Roles

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—Miss Deborah Kerr, who won fame and fortune in Hollywood playing roles she has described as "unmarried Mrs. Minivers," has graduated happily now, she says, to playing suffering married women.

For this sudden maturity, Miss Kerr pronounced "car" gives sincere thanks to the movie "From Here to Eternity." It was her portrayal of the brooding, physically frustrated Karen in this picture which won her a nomination for an Academy Oscar and transferred her career to Broadway, where she has been starring in the smash hit "Tea and Sympathy."

This June she'll leave Broadway for London's Strand to star in Graham Greene's "The End of the Affair"—playing another unhappy wedded female.

But Miss Kerr isn't one of those who fled Hollywood screaming her distaste for its habitual type-casting. Uncomplaining, she just got fed up to the top of her red head and quietly rebelled. Then she landed the role opposite Burt Lancaster in "Eternity" which changed her life.

"I felt that the parts I was getting—and I suppose they were good enough parts—weren't giving me a chance to do what I enjoy doing—act," she explained with complete good humor.

"I don't pop off often, but when I finally make up my mind, I do it in a sort of underhand way. I just get stubborn."

It was her little daughter Melanie, now 6, who put Miss Kerr's feeling about her film career into words.

"I took her to see 'King Solomon's Mines,' " she said. "When we came out I asked her how she liked it. 'Oh, it was lovely," said my child, 'all those animals, and all those dances. But why did you have to keep falling down and screaming all the time?"

"I realized how true it was—I'd just been playing women who, every time there was a crisis, fell down, screamed or fainted. I figured there were plenty of girls with prettier faces who could do that as well as I—and who would like it better."

Miss Kerr, however, is very grateful for those movie parts.

"In the first place," she explained, "there was the business of being steadily employed and getting established in the country. Films made it possible for a lot of people to see me and get to know my name. And I suppose if I'd had parts I enjoyed playing, I'd never have wanted to break out of my rut."

In six Hollywood years, beginning with "The Hucksters" in 1947, and climaxed by "From Here to Eternity," she had a fine assortment of co-stars, including Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Robert Taylor, James Mason and Cary Grant, names which aren't to be sneezed at—even by Mrs. Miniver. Her plans include a return to the Coast for more picture making, legitimate theater engagements permitting.

She's another of the current crop of ballet-trained actresses. Born in Scotland, she grew up in Sussex, England. Most of her education was received in a girls' boarding school where her Aunt Jane taught dramatics. For a while she wanted to be a dancer and studied at the famous Sadler's Wells ballet school. But —

"I started dancing a little too late, and anyway, I was too tall," she explained. "It finally occurred to me that I'd never be anything more than a swan in the back row and I wanted to dance leads."

So she switched to acting, found a spot in an outdoor London repertory theater and there wangled an audition with the great Gabriel Pascal as he was casting for a movie version of Shaw's "Major Barbara." She won a small part and was launched in British films.

During the war Deborah, like every other Britisher, did her bit—in her case entertaining the troops. Doing this she met and fell in love with Squadron Leader Anthony C. Bartley, one of Britain's top air aces. They were married a few months after war's end.

It was not, however, a routine wedding, but rather a reunion of the Battle of Britain pilots. Tony's old friend Lord Beaverbrook, the newspaper magnate, covered the ceremony in person and in his report estimated that a total of 161 downed German planes were represented by the wedding guests. Miss Kerr says flowers came from all over the world.

"It was not a wedding," she recalled a little wistfully. "It was more like a convention of pilots."

Bartley produces television films in England for American use. His work keeps him in New York much of the time, which has been pleasant during the run of "Tea and Sympathy." The Bartleys have leased the town house of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Merry-Go-Round
Ike On Fishing and TVA Power

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—When 16 Congressmen from the Tennessee Valley states left the White House the other day, they appointed Congressman Jere Cooper of Tennessee to issue a press statement that their conference with Eisenhower was amicable. Actually, it was just the opposite.

Every time the Congressmen tried to get down to brass tacks regarding the reappointment of Gordon Clapp as TVA administrator, the President changed the subject.

"They tell me the fishing's good down your way," he remarked as Congressman Cooper and Percy Priest of Tennessee started to urge the reappointment of Clapp, a nonpolitical career man who worked his way up the ladder to become head of the nation's biggest power project.

Congressman Joe Evins of Tennessee, Tom Abernethy of Mississippi and Henderson Lanham of Georgia agreed that the fishing was fine. But they politely reminded Ike that they had come to talk about Clapp, not fishing.

"I can assure you of one thing," responded Ike, "and I would like to emphasize this. When I fill any vacancy on the TVA board, it will be done on a nonpartisan basis."

Congressman Jamie Whitten of Mississippi next tried to impress on the President that Clapp not only was nonpartisan, but extremely efficient.

Eisenhower replied he had "considered" naming Gen. Bob Neyland, Tennessee University's athletic director, as TVA chairman.

"Bob Neyland is best known as a football coach, but he also was a great baseball player and later proved his administrative ability in the Corps of Engineers," the President recalled. "However, I understand that Bob has been in poor health lately."

Creeping Socialism??

Ike began to go into detail about Neyland's athletic achievements in football and baseball, but Congressman Noble Gregory of Kentucky respectfully suggested that the delegation would prefer to hear Ike's views on the TVA program, since that was the reason for their visit.

What Gregory and other Congressman had in mind was the President's various conflicting statements about TVA which indicated he was sometimes for it, sometimes against. During his election campaign he lauded TVA before a Memphis audience on Oct. 15, 1952. But nine months later, June 17, 1953, he cited TVA as an example of "creeping Socialism." Then on October 8 he told a press conference that he never described TVA as "creeping Socialism," had only said some of its features were.

So the Congressmen thought this was a good time to pin down the President on what he really thought.

The TVA represents a philosophy in the field of electric power development that must be kept under continous study," replied Ike. "However, what's good for one area might not apply in another. It's as simple as two and two making four.

"I'm inclined to favor the states and local communities handling their own problems without intervention by the Federal Government. I do not say that this policy should apply to the whole country."

He was then asked if he felt that the theory of state and local control of hydroelectric power should apply in cases where a river ran through a number of states, as in the Tennessee Valley.

Ike replied that a "local partnership" (between private power companies and municipalities) was the best solution. He said he had received "several" letters from private power companies complaining about the competition of the government power projects.

Cancer and Cigarettes

Dr. Alton Ochsner of Tulane University, whose unhappy job it has been to remove more lungs from Americans than pershaps any other doctor, told me of an experience he had with the Associated Press when he put the finger on the relationship between lung cancer and cigarettes four years ago.

He had given a careful analysis of the cause of lung cancer before a cancer conference at Denver in 1950, showing the tremendous increase among cigarette users. Afterward the AP man asked for a copy of his speech and put it on the wire.

"In 20 minutes," said Dr. Ochsner, "it was recalled. The AP man apologized and said his office wouldn't stand for it."

I hope the press associations today are less considerate of advertisers and more considerate of the public health. But in case they aren't, here are some amazing statements made by Dr. Ochsner on television this week end, which the public will want to know about.

"There's a complete parallelism between the consumption of cigarettes in the United States and the increase of lung cancer," says Dr. Ochsner. "Both go up about the same degree . . . . lung cancer has outstripped every other type of cancer in recent years . . . there's been an attempt to blame air pollution, but I'm sure air pollution has nothing to do with it . . . . Washington University in St. Louis has taken a robot machine that smokes cigarettes just like a human being . . . and used this to apply smoke to animals . . . at the end of two years, 44 per cent of the animals had a cancer right where the smoke had been applied. It was indistinguishable from the cancer we see in humans.

Official British Findings

"Lung cancer has gone up in the same proportion as cigarette consumption wherever studies have been made—in Holland, Denmark, England. In England an official government report found a definite relationship between the two . . . studies show that many boys now begin smoking at the age of nine or ten, whereas, they used to start at about 20. This has led to the peak incidence of lung cancer coming at the age of 50 to 55 instead of 65 as formerly . . . after the age of 55, the incidence of lung cancer falls off. This is due to another factor. The individual who has been a heavy cigarette smoker for a number of years subjects his heart and blood vessels to the deleterious effects of tabacco and is likely to develop coronary thrombosis and die before he develops cancer of the lung . . . pipe and cigar smokers do not develop lung cancer because they don't inhale. However, they can get cancer of the lip, tongue or mouth."

Let's Not Kid Ourselves About Nation's Crime Rate

By Bruce Biossat

When anyone views juvenile deliquency or crime in general with great alarm, he can always count on some earnest second-thinkers to arise and say:

"Now just wait a minute. We've always had these problems. It's no different today from what it was 20 or 30 years ago. You simply don't remember the old days. Let's not exaggerate this situation. Let's keep it in perspective."

Well and good. Perspective and balance and caution are fine things. But, taken as a whole, statements like the above are just not accurate any more. It is not true that the crime problem is no worse than in years gone by.

The latest FBI figures on major crimes in America are offered in evidence. If crime totals were shown to be rising at roughly the same rate as the population is increasing, that would lend substance to a contention that the problem isn't changing much. But the statistics don't show that.

What they do disclose is that since 1950 the population has risen five per cent, but crime has gone up 20 per cent. In other words, by ratio of 4 to 1, it is increasing faster than the population. There is small comfort here for those who want to insist that the problem ins't any worse than it used to be.

Except for murder, all categories of crime increased in 1953. But there were nearly 13,000 cases of murder or negligent manslaughter, which is not much to cheer about.

Youths under the age of 21 account for slightly more than 50 per cent of all nation's major crimes against property—robbery, burglary, larceny, automobile theft, and so on. Since there were in 1953 more than 1,000,000 such crimes, that means our young people were involved in some 500,000.

No one can say that there are not many Americans who are alert to both the general and juvenile crime problem, though it is perhaps a question whether enough of us grasp the full seriousness of these matters.

But the real point made by these shocking statistics is that we do not seem to have found suitable answers, or, if we have, we are not applying them with sufficient vigor and breadth. The problem is not being licked. It is getting worse. And it's no good blaming it all on "postwar reaction." That doesn't stop it.

A lot of people scoff at presidential commissions, but there might be genuine value in one devoted to crime. President Eisenhower might well gather together members of the judiciary, law enforcement officers, criminologists, penologists, psychologists, all those who know anything about crime in particular and the social fabric of the country in general.

From their considered study we just might get the kind of sweeping, bold assault on this problem that it requires it law-abiding Americans are to remain masters in their own house.

Bad Odor From Perspiration

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

What is evidently a common and distressing complaint is perspiration having a bad odor. Sometimes this appears to be located principally in the armpits, sometimes in the feet and sometimes elsewhere. Today's first letter is an example.

Q—My son and I both have excessive perspiration of the feet, which has a bad odor. We have tried many different foot powders without satisfaction. Have you any suggestions? Mrs. S.W.

A—Some foods like onion or garlic and a few medicines may be excreted in the sweat and give it an offensive odor. The general health may occasionally affect the local perspiration.

More commonly, perhaps, the prespiration in certain places serves as a good spot for the growth of certain germs which decompose the sweat or oil secreted from the glands of the skin, causing it to have an offensive odor.

Perhaps the most useful measure to combat these process are certain aluminum preparations which are present in most of the commercial deodorants sold in drugstores.

It appears that the effect of these products is to slow the action of the germs and perhaps have some chemical effect on the products present. There are other preps rations sometimes used, but most of them are fairly strong and should be employed only under the direction of the physician or skin specialist.

In very severe cases X-ray treatments are sometimes used but these must be given with the greatest of care.

Q—I have a daughter who drives to work teaching school every day. In cold weather the ends of her fingers turn white when she is driving. What could cause this? Mrs. C.

A—This sounds as though your daughter had some spasm of the arteries in her fingers. She should be examined by a physician with the possibility of Raynaud's Disease in mind.

Senator With Rational Approach

Sen. John F. Kennedy, Massachusetts Democrat, has been persistently pressing the administration for more light on the Indochina situation. But he has been doing this in the dational, temperate manner which is so characteristic of him.

Anyone who will take the trouble to examine Kennedy's public utterances, either since he has been a senator or while he was a useful member of the House, will find that he has an engaging talent for avoiding the inflammatory and the recklessly accusatory statement.

Kennedy acts and talks as if it were quite proper to have two political parties in this country while so many of his colleagues behave as if they really were convinced one woud be better.

He manages to develop and hold strong views on all major issues, without ever seeming to imply that no other views but his are proper.

To put it simply, he is the kind of lawmaker many men pretend to be but are not.

Saint of the Khyber

By Mary Frazer
NEA Special Correspondent

He is tall and strong, as one must be to live among these people, where from the age of five every man is a soldier. His head is balding, but his gray-black beard is a fine one. And you know from the wise, wonderful glow in his dark eyes that whatever his years, he is ageless in heart.

His name, the painstakingly typed-out slip tells me, is Nisarul Haque Qureshi. After his name he has put the degrees B.A., B.T., Dr. Ph. E. And although he is a very humble man, I know he put them there with immense pride.

As headmaster of a fledgling school at Landikotal, in the Khyber, he is teaching 500 earnest little boys and young men a variety of subjects: The Three R's in Urdu, English and Persian; "General Knowledge;" sciences; physical education and hygiene, and a great number of other serious subjects.

All of his 30 teachers, young men who instruct for $14 and $20 to $30 a month, look for all the world like the shepherds of old. Most wear loose, pajama - like trousers, some draped, some straight, with hand-woven robes of tablecloth proportions draped over their shoulders. Some have shaved heads, some long hair, a few had turbans.

At the school, as we performed our ablutions, we studied the fascinating mottoes painted on the white-washed walls, all, so obviously, inspired by a careful study of American copy-books.

"Cleanliness is indeed Godliness," "Handsome is as handsome does," and "Bravo Bravo Bravo for He Who Tries."

In the dining hall, there were photos of Boy Scouts at a world jamboree; United Nations Day posters; maps and calendars, pictures of the Governor General and Prime Minister, with political proclamations in Urdu scripts beneath.

An aged servant, wearing a turban and a brown robe and with most of his stern face covered by a curly beard, entered with tea and cakes. Across his robe was slung a huge version of one of the hand-made Khyber rifles, and a cartridge belt encircled his waist. The gun bumped against us as he poured our tea and waved a fan to chase away the flies.

"We in this part of the world are offended if you do not eat heartily with us," said our host.

"Now we shall visit in the classrooms. You must understand that I have tried to do with very little, and that, in this tribal area, the very idea of a school was strange and new and something to arouse their suspicions, when I came here from Peshawar three years ago. Pesha ar is but 45 miles away, but it is another land," the headmaster said.

The theologians were boys of five and six years.

In the mathematics class, the boys were seated on each side of the room on straw mattings. Their meager school equipment was by their crossed knees, tied in time-stained kerchiefs. They arose at once, and carefully noting the word "WEL COME" chalked on the blackboard, repeated it in piping voices.

There was a military greeting in the English classes, as they arose and a boy snapped "Ten-Shun!" . . . And a little demonstration when a student went to the blackboard and led the 35 through "A . . . B . . . C . . . D . . . E . . . F" drill three times, precision perfect.

"I have tried in vain to get some information from the States, on an idea I once heard of, that you can paint a classroom to draw attention to the teacher," Nisarul Haque Qureshi said to me, as we grouped on the campus for picture taking.

"I would so like to know of this, and to exchange ideas with other professors on education. I must do so much for these children here in the Khyber, for they need to learn and they are so eager. Just a word, now and then, would be of great stimulus to me."

As we waved good-bye to Nisarul Haque Qureshi, I was promising that I would try to find out the answer to his inquiry.

"This is the best prayer rug we can afford," said Nisarul Haque Qureshi, indicating the fresh, clean straw on the cement floor. The lads, all dressed in long cotton trousers with knee- length tunics, and a variety of skull caps, some drab, some vividly embroidered, instantly arose and greeted us in their Pushto dialect.

"They are studying the Holy Koran, Boys, for our American visitors, please to begin," said the headmaster.

A little boy with enormous black eyes led his classmates in a chant. Their stares changed to alook of piety, with only here and there a mischievous grin.

"They are praising God," said the headmaster. "This is one of our large classes, for they all come from families who have been pious for many centuries."

A House Big Enough

By Gudren Olson

XV

THE danger of an outburst was past and Elaine tried to bring her voice into its natural range. "How is your thumb, Mrs. Dahlstrom? I see you've taken off the bandage."

Mrs. Dahlstrom put aside the spoon and placed the bowl on the kitchen table. She held out her hand for Elaine to inspect. For a second, Elaine had the fantastic notion that Mrs. Dahlstrom was like a little child begging for sympathy over a hurt finger. That notion was almost as fantastic as the sympathy Elaine herself felt, for it was more than sympathy for some little physical pain.

There was no inflammation in the thumb, and only a thin, black line showed where it had been cut. "It's nothing," Mrs. Dahlstrom declared. "It'll take a lot more than a little nick like that to get me off my feet."

Mrs. Dahlstrom busied herself again before she spoke, underscoring what she had to say with physical movement.

"Why don't you go upstairs and rest awhile before supper? You must have had a hard day. I'm sure you're tired."

With disbelief, Elaine noted the tone of compassion in Mrs. Dahlstrom's voice. But no, it couldn't be sincere. Mrs. Dahlstrom wasn't going to be won over that easily.

Elaine took a warm shower, recrimsoned her lips, combed her hair. Then she lay down on the bed in her robe until Tom's and Bill's footsteps on the porch reverberated through the house. Quickly dressing, she arrived in the kitchen as Mrs. Dahlstrom put the last steaming bowl on the table.

Tom looked at her inquiringly. He seemed about to say, I thought you were going to help Ma. Or was it a prick of her own conscience, that made her wish she had come down sooner? She should have helped somehow.

"Lenny," Tom said grandly, "Ma says you're to drive her car back and forth to school." His six feet seemed to stretch upward a little with the words.

Catching her breath in utter astonishment, Elaine suddenly sat down in the chair he held out for her. She looked across the table into Mrs. Dahlstrom's remote face and started to speak.

Mrs. Dahlstrom checked her. "It stands in the garage most of the time anyway," she said flatly. "You might as well use it. Can't expect others to drive you back and forth. And Tom is too busy to take you down mornings and go after you every evening." Dismissing the entire subject, she bowed her head and said grace.

* * *

THE next 16 days, when she had time to think about it, Elaine grudgingly admitted that Mrs. Dahlstrom had been right. Tom was too busy. Apparently the whole farm, the barns and the outbuildings, had been neglected during the years he had been at the University and in the Army. Tom was determined to restore everything before the first snowstorm howled out of the north. He got up long before daybreak. Often he was out in the fields before Elaine waked up and she had only a wave of his hand for a good-morning kiss.

At night he listened to the newscast, scanned his farm journals for a while, and trudged up to bed.

Elaine had always known this reserved side in Tom's nature, but since they had come home he was downright taciturn. It as if like he, too, sensed the animosity that Elaine knew smoldered in his mother's breast and was going to say nothing that might bring it out in the open or tell Elaine he realized it was there. On several occasions she had noticed him glancing from her to his mother, a baffled look wavering through the affection in his eyes. Usually, he seemed to be waiting philosophically. As he had often said, things usually work themselves out, if you give them time.

Elaine was thankful that good health and exhaustion let her collapse into sleep at night. The days were much more difficult. The knowledge that she, a new graduate with a minimum of experience, was taking the place of a capable teacher twice her age made her try too hard. At the end of each day she was more fatigued than the day before.

Yet she wasn't thankful when the final bell sounded each afternoon. Each time she flipped over a page on Mrs. Farrell's desk calendar, a premonition worsened like a slow-growing chimera. The premonition was that Mrs. Dahlstrom would throw her bodily out of the big white house when she witnessed Elaine's dance at the high school minstrel show.

Elaine could almost see the banked fires in Mrs. Dahlstrom's eyes shoot into flames, the thin, composed face become livid with rage. She had never seen it happen. That made the vision more terrifying.

* * *

ANY sensible person, Elaine told herself, would have refused to perform that silly dance. Yet, a curious mixture of defiance and daring and vanity made her secret rehearsals with Marion the most exhilarating part of the day.

Several times, Elaine was on the verge of telling Tom her secret. But each time, when the words were on the tip of her tongue, it struck her anew how much his eyes were like those of his mother. Elaine was afraid she would see the same sort of disapproval in Tom's eyes that often shone in Mrs. Dahlstrom's So Elaine kept silent.

On Friday night, Oct. 21, the villagers would learn that Elaine Allen Dahlstrom hadn't worked so hard at the University of Wisconsin that she had forgotten how to dance. And that becoming a Dahlstrom hadn't had such a sobering effect on her that she had traded her natural gaiety for her mother-in-law's stiff—

Should Elaine call it snobbery?

Proposed adoption of the City Manager plan of government for Sedalia, voted on in a special election Tuesday, May 7, was defeated by a 649 majority. Politicians tought hard and long in opposition to it during a heated campaign.

Fewer Americans Are Joining Circus as New Performers

By HAL BOYLE

This saddens Pat Valdo, who has followed the tanbark trail for 51 years—and would do it all over again gladly.

"There are very few American circus families anymore—they are dying out," said Pat, who worked up from clown to general performance director of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. (This is the organization that for 70 years has been conducting a whispering campaign that it is the greatest show on earth.)

Americans still excel in the high trapeze acts, but that's about all.

"Why it is I don't know. Our kids are good athletes, but not many want to go on and become professionals. Those who do want to become perfor ers concentrate on other entertainment fields. They sing or talk or dance."

Pat, who knows most of the 600 animals and 1,000 people in the circus by name, nodded moodily to big Ruth, an elderly elephant, as she ambled past. Big Ruth waved her trunk at him—just one old pro saluting another.

"There actually aren't enough good American acts left to put on a whole circus program," said Valdo. "There are now about 19 nationalities among our performers.

Pat is a tall, leathery, timeless man who doesn't like to talk about his age beyond admitting "I got a lot of mileage on me—a lot of mileage."

He was born Patrick Fitzgerald, and is the only Irishman I ever met who changed his name. In his case he can plead self-defense.

"It was a defense against hunger," he grinned. "I was in a partner act, and the fellow I was teamed with thought we'd both eat better and get more bookings if I abbreviated my name from Fitzgerald to Valdo."

Few names in a circus world, here or abroad, are better known today than that of the Irishman called Valdo.

Pat joined the circus as a youth at Binghamton, N.Y. For 31 years he worked as a master clown, a juggler, and as partner in a boomerang-throwing act with his wife, Laura. She will travel with him as usual when he sets out next week on his 52nd consecutive tour with the circus.

His face will go before him, a face more familiar to millions of Americans than that of Marilyn Monroe. Although he quit performing himself 20 years ago, the famous white-faced clown you see on the circus posters is Pat Valdo.

Mothers of Little Boys

MOTHERS OF LITTLE BOYS

He climbs on top of ladders,
He tries to climb a tree,
It doesn't matter—not a bit—
That he is less than three.
"I can't do much about it"
The little mother said.
"I see him tumble off of things
"And quick, I turn my head.
"Life is a state of jitters,
"He climbs up high and jumps,
"Or maybe falls, I pick him up
"And rub and kiss the bumps."
But things will get no better
At five, at seven, ten
In fact its just about that time
Real troubles will begin.
He'll bring home frogs and lizards
He'll bring home rats and mice
And she will think they're horrid
And he will think they're nice.
She'll be just like the mother
Who each night stays awake
Because her boy brought home one day
A live and wiggly snake,
And somehow it got loose
In the house and can't be found
And life has been a torment
Since she knows that snake's around.
Mothers aren't so understanding
When it comes to raising boys
They can love them when they're dirty,
They can stand the mud and noise,
They will put up with their dogs,
Their rabbits, chickens, cats
But they sure lack understanding
When it comes to snakes and rats.
No she wouldn't take a million
For her little boy, that's true,
But oh, the things a mother
Of a little boy goes through.

Jimmy Takes Campaign Into Homes

By GRAHAM BERRY

LOS ANGELES, May 8 (AP)—Instead of speeches in hired halls and banquets, James Roosevelt is using the home touch in his bid for Congress.

Roosevelt, whose sensational separate maintenance suit makes him one of the Democratic party's most controversial figures, is carrying his campaign into living rooms and patios all over California's sprawling 26th Congressional District.

It's a political technique his campaign manager, Ed Lybeck, thinks will pay off. It gets the candidate closer to the people, Lybeck says, and makes his appeal more personal and folksy. And it's cheaper.

But it's also a grueling pace for a candidate. Roosevelt must remain affable and agile throughout four or more face-to-face question-and-answer periods with 30 to 100 voters a day. He averages about 21 home meetings a week during which he briefly outlines his views then throws open the meeting to questions.

He's likely to get questions on anything from unemployment to his wife Romelle's charges of wholesale infidelities. Although no holds are barred, he says questions on his domestic affairs are rare. Questions on salaries, pensions andunemployment are more frequent. A majority of the half-million residents in the oversized congressional district earn modest incomes and these are the issues of deepest concern to them.

This kind of campaigning works on an invitation basis, Lybeck, a former detective story writer, says Roosevelt got 14 invitations for house meetings in a single day—the one after National Democratic Chairman Stephen Mitchell urged him to stay out of the race until his domestic affairs were straightened out.

Roosevelt mixes in frequent appearances at charity and other functions with his house meetings. And he keeps business going as usual at his insurance office.

Once a week he makes time to visit his three youngsters, living with his estranged wife in nearby Pasadena.

The eldest son of FDR expects to keep up the grind right up to the June 8 primary election. The combination of political campaigning and business as usual keeps him working 16 hours a day, seven days a week.

Backed by the 26th District Democratic Council, he faces seven opponents for his party's nomination. His most formidable opposition comes from another presidential descendant — weekly newspaper publisher Ned Redding, who counts Thomas Jefferson prominently among his ancestors.

Both Redding and Roosevelt have cross-filed in the Republican race, where they face five GOP opponents.

The man who wins the Democratic nomination in June has an excellent chance to be elected Nov. 2. Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans in the district 151,194 to 73,763. The incumbent Rep. Sam Yorty, is a Democrat. He has given up his House seat to run for the U. S.Senate.

The district, formed in 1951, is admittedly the product of vigorous gerrymandering. It contains large Jewish and Negro populations and many factory workers.

"All the problems of ourcountry are contained in it. That's one reason it especially interests me."

He lives in an apartment just four blocks outside the district boundary. Congressmen are not required to live in their districts.

As for his stand on current issues, the 46-year-old Roosevelt emphasizes he is not running to vindicate his name.

He did say he was running for that purpose when he was endorsed by the district Democratic council, but since then he has repeatedly explained it is a secondary issue.

It was his opponent Ned Redding who commented, "The guilt or innocence of James Roosevelt in his marital problems has no place in a political campaign."

Roosevelt, if asked about this issue, frankly explains that if he does go to Congress and makes a good record it will help his reputation.

An Old Story

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — A Pittsburgh driver talked his way out of paying a $1 traffic fine by convincing Police Clerk William Thomas that a parking meter was broken and wouldn't take his nickle.

Thomas glanced at the license number on the ticket as the man began to walk away, then remembered something. He leafed through his files to find 16 old tickets bearing the same number.

FLYING "FLEA"—A triplane called the "Flea" may soon be sold in "build-it-yourself" kits for less than $1000. George Frisbee, its inventor, demonstrates the plane in Milwaukee, Wis. It still has to pass several CAA tests before he'll be able to market the Flea. The plane is 15 feet long, has a 20-foot wing span and reportedly travels about 100 miles per hour.

We were aware that at any moment the enraged Indian tribes might swoop down upon us and surround our pioneer train. In their savage war upon the white man they scalped him, burned his wagon and killed his women and children—and yet we pressed on through it all.

And I say to you, mothers of this great new country, it was I who blazed the trail to the mighty west—through difficulties, through perils, through terror, and it took courage. And I say to you that motherhood is based on courage—courage and love.

Civil War Mother

I am the Civil War Mother. When this great nation divided on the question of human slavery I saw my sons fighting—sometimes brother against brother—upon the bloody field of battle.

And while our husbands and sons fought for the stars and stripes or the stars and bars, our homes were invaded by soldiers. We were ordered to prepare meals, our belongings were ransacked, our horses were stolen and our sons shot down before our eyes and we were commanded to leave them where they fell.

Is there any reason why the bitterness between the north and south arose in the hearts of the Civil War mothers?

The four years from 1861 to 1865 were years of horror for the women of that period, but they left a record of endurance, achievement, and self-sacrifice that speaks for itself.

And so I say to the mothers of all generations that motherhood blossoms through sacrifice and love.

The Gold Star Mother

I am the Gold Star Mother. It was to the most brutal, most ghastly, most destructive wars of all time to which I gave my sons.

At home I knit sweaters and socks, made bandages, made cookies and candy, wrote letters and did all I could in my small way, while over in other lands, thousands of miles away—on foreign soil— my boys faced death in the most hideous form.

Today peace reigns for our country, but there in Flanders field white crosses blend with vivid poppies in silent tribute to heroic dead in World War I. Throughout the world my sons have gone back to dust in World War II and the Korean conflict, manhood slaughtered in its valiant youth whose sacrifice is forgotten save by me—the mother of the boy who gave his life for freedom.

And so now speaks the Gold Star Mother's heart—that motherhood is woven of memories—memories and devoted love.

Young Mother of Today

I am today's young mother. Before me stands my child—the mother of tomorrow, and in my heart there beats all of the emotions of the mothers of the past and all of the dreams of the mothers of the future. And in my soul there riseth up a prayer to the Prince of Peace that my child shall never know the tears, the sorrows, the cruelty of war—that she will bear her children and rear them with the understanding and the affection of true motherhood—and that they will be a joy to her forever.

Inventions have made my tasks lighter, but the problems of motherhood become even greater in this fast moving age—striving to live abreast of the times it is only the feeling of freedom and frankness between my children and myself that brings about the confidence and understanding of the new generation. And from this understanding comes mother love that reaches out to shield my child from all temptations and all dangers like the gentle hand of their guardian angel.

And I say to you, my daughter, that the wisdom of motherhood comes forth from complete confidence, understanding and love.

Mother of the Future

I am the Mother of the Future. Soon I shall cease to be a little girl and I shall seek from life all of the beauty and the happiness that is every woman's birthright.

I shall find adventure, joy, romance and eventually motherhood. And when I do, I will remember that the foundation of motherhood is purity, faith, loyalty, courage, sacrifice, memories, understanding—and all of these great morals united into the one beautiful word—love. For has not each mother in her time inspired the life of her child through this one supreme power?

And I say to thee, mother of mine, and mothers of the past, I shall gather together all of the virtues of motherhood and the mothers that come after me shall know of your patience, your toil and your suffering and I shall hand down to them through the generations that most glorious of gifts—the very soul of all motherhood—love.

4-H Round-Up

By Jim Perry
Assistant County Agent

State 4-H Club Week

Some 800 4-H members will gather at Columbia on June 14 to share in State Club Week activities. Each of the 114 counties of the state may send 2% of their total 4-H enrollment as delegates. Our quota is 14. The Pettis County delegation will be selected by the Pettis County Farm Bureau Rural Youth Committee. Selection will be made on the basis of score sheets sent to each member over 14 years of age.

The registration fee will be $9.00 which is 50 cents higher than last year. The delegation will leave the Extension Office at 11:45 a. m. on June 14th and will return about 4:30 p. m. on June 17th. 32 boys and girls over 16 years of age may work in the dining room and get free registration.

Joe and Dewey Hoehns of Ringen-Brushy 4-H club have already returned their applications.

More Clubs Interested In Bacon Plaque

The fact that more clubs are interested in the Dorothy Bacon Plaque this year can easily be seen. I have noticed that more clubs are keeping more accurate records of what the clubs are doing. Several clubs have junior leaders as committee chairman for that purpose. Jody Reine of Tanglenook 4-H tells me that they are planning upon making a signboard directory for their community. This would be very nice for people trying to locate a farmstead in that community.

Some of the members of the Striped College 4-H Club have said that while several clubs have quit trying after winning the Plaque several years, they have no entention of doing that. Therefore, it looks as though it is going to be a close contest. It will be one from which a number of communities will benefit—win, lose, or draw.

4-H Camp Quota Reached

The 1954 4-H Camp quota was reached Thursday afternoon at 4:55 p. m. when Delta Reine of Tanglenook 4-H Club made her $1.50 deposit. However, we will contine to accept deposits as several usually drop out. Those who are signed up on the waiting list will be handled on a "First come-first served" basis.

At the present time only four 4-H leaders are signed up to go to Camp. We would certainly be glad to have more go. Looking after 63 boys and girls can be made much easier with several leaders at Camp.

Maplewood 4-H Uses Junior Leaders

Clear Muddy Pond Water

Clearing muddy pond water is just one of the many things that clubs carrying the wildlife conservation activity can do. This makes the pond more attractive to both wildlife and people, fish will grow faster, and it will be more suitable for livestock watering purposes. I am sure that a 4-H club can find a muddy pond that has been fenced and stocked with fish and an owner who would furnish the materials needed.

To clear a pond, the raw earth banks should be mulched and millet seeded on them. Then use 15 pounds of gypsum for each 1000 cubic feet of water. Figure the volume by multiplying ¼ of the deepest part by the number of steps around the pond squared. A pond 200 steps around and 8 feet deep has a volume of about 80,000 cubic feet. Use 1200 pounds of gypsum. This would cost about $18.00. Just take a scoop shovel and scatter the gypsum as much as possible over the surface of the water.

Notice Any Sheep Tick

I have been wondering if any of the sheep project members noticed any sheep tick while shearing their sheep. If you did, you should take measures to control them. It seems to be the nature of the sheep tick to migrate from the shorn ewes to the lambs that are still nursing. They can make it pretty rough on lambs—especially the late ones.

Ticks can be controlled by spraying or dipping the sheep using 1 pound of 5% rotenone powder in 100 gallons of water. Stirling Kyd, our Extension Entomologist, says that this is as satisfactory as any treatment and considerably cheaper. The lambs should be sprayed or dipped at the same time the ewes are. In case of spraying, 1 to 2 pounds of household detergent (Tide, Vel, Dreft, etc.) per 100 gallons of water should be added. This will help the spray to penetrate the wool better.

Moniteau County New Home Agent

By Mrs. T. W. Miller

TIPTON—Mrs. Mary Desser, Columbia, will take Miss Amy Pearl's place as Moniteau County home agent, Miss Pearl went to Jefferson City in October. Mrs. Desser received her B.S. from University of Missouri, and received her masters degree from Teachers College in Columbia. She taught at Illinois Wesley University at Bloomington, and at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y. She took training in Daviess counties.

Lee W. Darby has sold his interest in the Tipton Motor Company Inc., Ford agency and garage, to Harold F. Albin, the change having gone into effect May 1. Mr. Darby announces selling was due to ill health. He and Mrs. Darby own their own home here. They have a son, Lee, 8, and after the close of school they plan on spending some time visiting their parents to allow Mr. Darby time to convalesce from recent major operations.

Mrs. Darby's mother, Mrs. Beulah Nolker, resides at Hardin, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Darby, at Carrollton.

The new owner, Harold Albin, began working at the Tipton Motor Company for the late Jess Hardy in June 1931 and had been there continuously since that time, outside of 43 months spent in Army service.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Albin, Tipton, and Mrs. Albin is a daughter of Mrs. John H. Moss, Versailles.

RADIOACTIVE CORN-GROWING—Circular patch in the air view above is a radioactive cornfield. It's an experimental plot at the Atomic Energy Commission's Brookhaven National Laboratory at Upton, N. Y. Purpose of the experiment is to determine the effect atomic energy can have on various types of vegetation. In center of the circular field is a pipe, containing a bar of radioactive cobalt 60, which sprays out gamma rays. The pipe can be raised or lowered to spray more or less area as desired. Thus effect of the radioactive spray at close quarters and from a distance can be accurately gauged. It is controlled from a station in one corner of the large, rectangular field. The plants are grown in circular rows so that there will be even distribution of measurement. It was found that radiation produced shorter plants (inset contrasts these with normal taller-than-man corn) but possibly of a higher yield because of greater grain ratio.

Long History Of Degrees

Do all those little abbreviations so commonly used to indicate academic degrees, confuse you?

In academic usage, a degree is a title conferred by a university as a mark of proficiency in scholarship.

Its usage dates bac to the 13th century when an apprentice after serving his training time, obtained a testimonial of his skill and a license to practice his trade or profession.

Originally, as "master" or "doctor", the degree was a certificate of aptness and ditness to teach at a university.

In modern times, however, the practice has been established of conferring honorary degrees as a recognition of distinction . . . without regard to academic qualifications.

Degrees in law, medicine and theology carry with them a license to practice these professions, but degrees in the arts are really no more than a certificate to show that the holder has a certain measure of acquaintance with the subject studied.

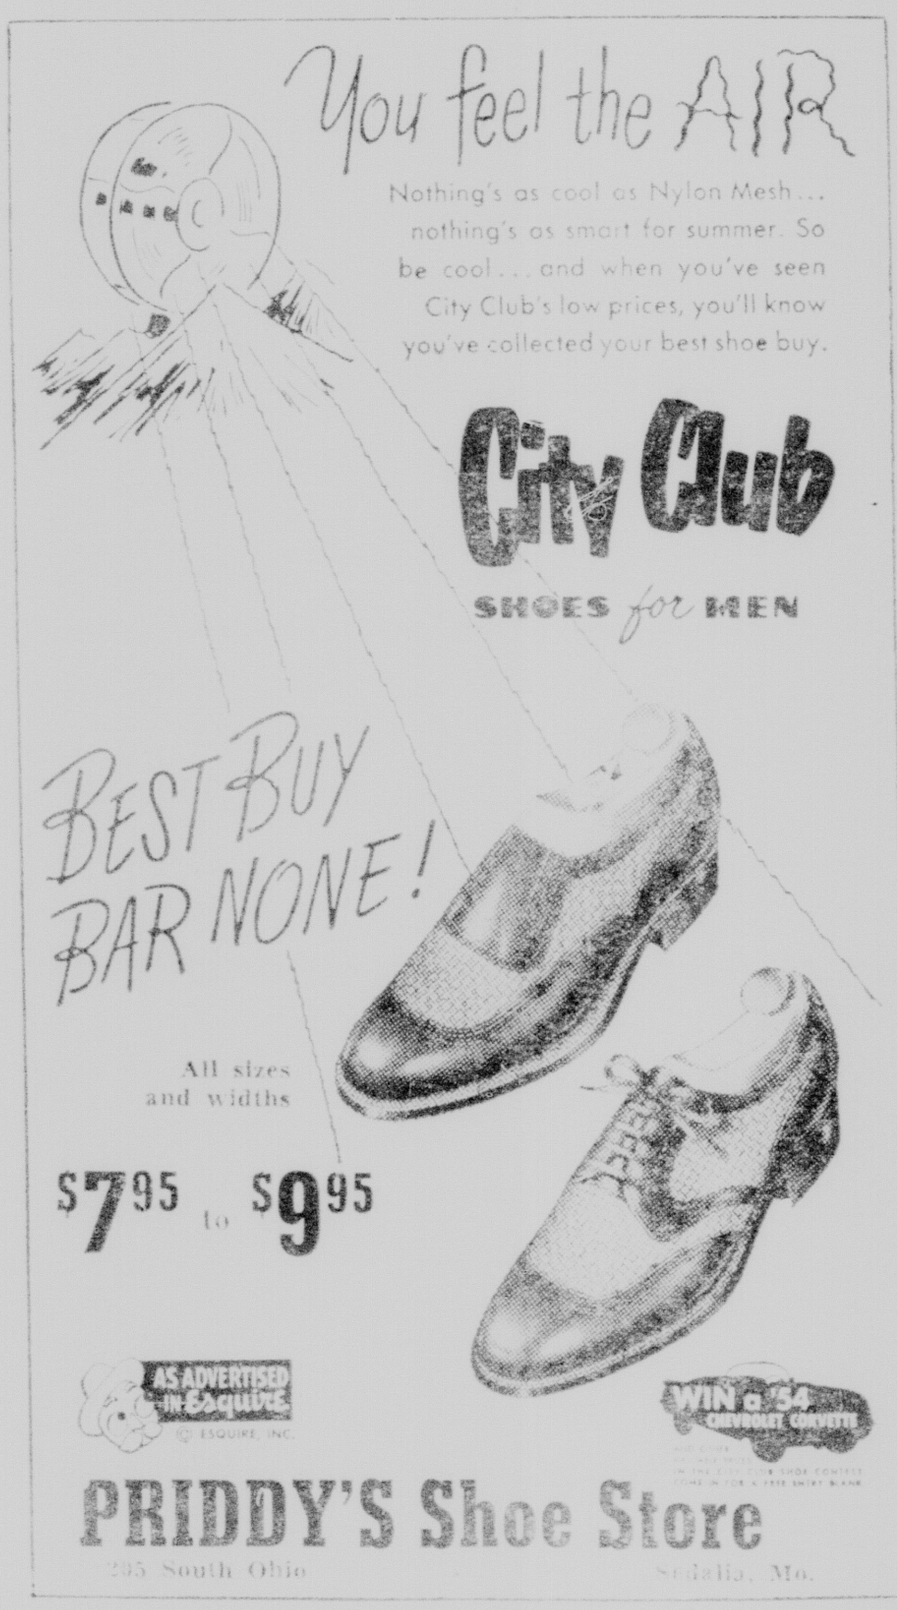

Thus degrees are granted in banking and business administration, aeronautical engineering, journalism, architecture and many others.

The commonest forms of degrees are still the Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) and Bachelor of Science (B.S.), to which the special field is added — such as Bachelor of Arts in Education . . . Bachelor of Science in Architecture.

New Vistas For Youths In Medicine

The field of medical science offers a wide variety of highly interesting careers for young women. All of them call for a definite course of training of from one to three years and most of the fields require at least two years of college background.

The extra years of training pay wonderful dividends both in salary and in terms of the interest and challenge of the work.

Medical Technologist

A medical technologist works in a hospital laboratory making various tests for physicians. This work calls for extreme accuracy and efficiency, for the doctor's diagnosis is often based on the findings of the technologist. She must be a graduate nurse or have at least two years of college with courses in chemistry and biology to qualify for the twelve consecutive months' study in the training school for medical technologists.

Medical Record Librarian

Two years of college are required to enter a medical record librarian school for the year of training required.

This job consists of reporting admissions, transfers, discharges, births and deaths of patients in a hospital. The medical record librarian is also responsible for filing the medical case histories, indexed and coded, of every person admitted to the hospital.

X-Ray Technician

Another specialized field is that of X-ray. The technician operates the machines which help to diagnose and treat disease. The diagnostic technician makes roentgenograms, develops films and gives them to the physician.

The therapeutic technician carries out a physician's orders in treating disease.

The training period of this field is from one to three years beyond high school. Some schools require a nurse's certificate or college training for entrance.

Physical Therapist

The physical therapist works under the direction of the physician. Her work is to treat disease or disability by means of massage, exercise, or other methods of restoring impaired or lost muscular control and use. The training takes one year and the applicant for physical therapy training must have 3 years of college with courses in physical or biological science or be a graduate of a nursing or physical education school.

Regional Library Notes---

Bookmobile Offers Variety Of Books for Vacationers

During the school year the bookmobile went to every elementary school in the Boonslick Regional Library area and all the boys and girls had a chance to choose books to read. But now that summer vacation has scattered the boys and girls, they do not all get a chance to see the many new and interesting books in the library. Just a few of the new books for the youngest children are "The Loudest Noise in the World", "Biggity Bantam", a rooster with a talent for trouble, and "Away Went Wolfgang," about a clumsy but well meaning dog who tried to be dignified as he pulled his Austrian dairy cart.

For beginning readers there is a variety of new books. "Anyone for Cub Scouts," by Gregor Felson, is about Scotty, who has just moved into the neighborhood and who wants to make friends. For the girls there is another scout book. This one is "The Oldest, the Youngest and the One in the Middle" by Lillian Gardner. It is about an only child who finds just the right club for her very own. "Whitey Takes a Trip" is another Western ranch story for young readers.

New in the Biography of Famous Americans series for younger boys and girls are Betsy Ross, Dan Webster, Susan Anthony and Young Jed Smith. This series is popular with most youngsters, even those in the upper grades, because it makes living characters of the people it portrays. There are several dozen of these books and they are among the most used of any books in the library.

For the middle grades there are a number of historical fiction titles. "The Race for Land", by Vera J. Prout, children's department supervisor of the Kansas City public library, should be popular. It is about a 12-year-old boy who joins in the homesteading of a fine tract of land in Oklahoma in 1889. "Hay-Foot, Straw-Foot" by Erick Berry is about a drummer boy during the French and Indian War in New York. "Crazy as You Look" by Julilly H. Kohler is about a little girl growing up in western Kentucky during the days of Chatauqua and tent shows.

Books on animals and science cover a wide range from "Dinosaurs" by Herbert Zim to "Monarch Butterfly" by Marion Marcher. These are mere a sampling of the many new books available for boys and girls. Coupled with a Clown Reading Club, young people should find many reasons for using their library.

Junior Colleges Gain Importance In U. S.

The typical organization of the United States educational system divides itself into an eight-year elementary school, four-year high school and four-year college period.

In recent years, however, greater emphasis has been placed upon secondary education with more and more intermediate schools (junior high schools) springing up over the country.

Along the same trend, is the greater emphasis on the junior college system which offers the first, two-year, usual college course of a more general nature.

This junior college period is thought, by many progressive educators to mark the end of the secondary general education and thus lead into a more intensive university specialization.

Daughter of Former Sedalians Tops Her Graduating Class

For the first time in several years, co-valedictorians have been named for the Port Clinton, Ohio, High School. Dorothy Ann Fischer and Marlene Sue Neilsen will reign as co-valedictorians as each has a perfect 4,000 average (straight A's) throughout their four years of high school study.

Dorothy Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max M. Fischer, former Sedalians, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Gertrude Fischer, 322 North Brown, Sedalia.

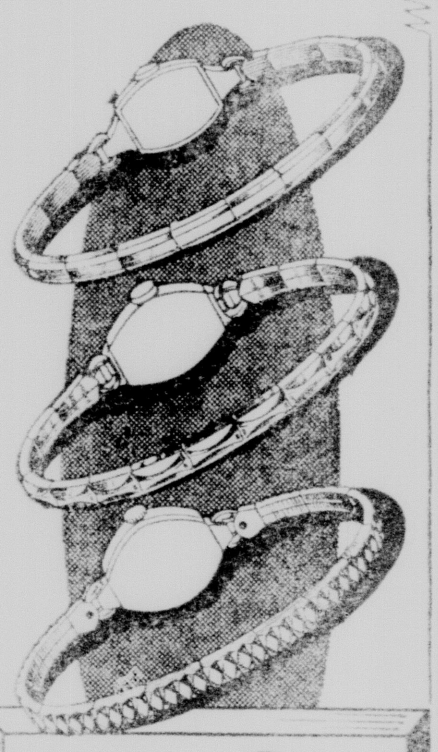

Miss Fischer has been accepted for the class of 1958 at Denison University, Granville, O. She was also offered a four year scholarship to Kent State University. She is a member of the National Honor Society.

An honor student and outstanding in many extra-cirricular activities, she is indefinite yet as to what field she wants to enter, but has a fondness for journalism.

Charm Magazine Sums Up Job Ideas for '54 Young Women; Tells of Variety and Scope

Of the nineteen million women who busily carry on the industries and professions of this country, 4,500,000 work in offices, one million as school tearchers, 1,500,000 are saleswomen and 350,000 work as nurses. These capsule word-portraits of women in those four groups were prepared by Charm Magazine and are printed by special permission.

The receptionist's smile, the telephone operator's voice, the boss' right arm—in a word, the office workers without whom industry and business, as we know them, could not exist.

By and large, the woman who works in an office loves her job—whether she is the only secretary in a tiny office, where she pinch-hits for the boss when he's away, or one of hundreds in a glittering air-conditioned towner of glass amid steel.

The office worker's average salary is about $47 a week and she's the woman who can go places in business. Typing and shorthand are mighty potent wedges in almost any industrial organization. Once in, intelligence and drive should be able to help her into more important, more demanding, more rewarding work.

Because she is always on view to her employers and her fashion-wise co-workers, she quickly acquires a certain "finish" by adding more than a dash of ingenuity to her income. She switches separates cleverly. She knows the value of the good suit, the well-made shoe, the sturdy handbag. Few overdress, and when they do, they quickly see the error of their ways. The office worker has acquired a sound fashion philosophy and it seems to be: put your money in a few good "backbones" and let your extras be the means of keeping you pleasant to look at and making your clothes look like you.

1,000,000 School Teachers

Surely no one needs to be reminded that the school teacher has a tremendous influence over our future citizens; performs a service to the country that just can't be over-valued. But her job is a strange mixture of pros and cons — she earns less money than many working women, but she also has longer vacations, favorable pensions and regular sabbatical leaves. Her hours are shorter than most, but her personal freedom is more limited—especially in small communities where her private life is expected to be exemplary—sometimes to the point of stuffiness. She enjoys being with children, but her opportunities for adult companionship are often limited. She reads, she studies and she's a great traveler.

A teacher's salary is about $3000 a year and out of this she is very likely to support a dependent. Her chances to make more money are not too good. The school teacher deserves a great deal more public appreciation, greater economic rewards, more opportunity for marriage and for children of her own.

From experience she has found that a simple suit makes complete sense. Plenty of blouses — preferably in pretty colors to please the critical eyes of her audience. Young people quickly respond to beauty as any good teacher will tell you. Of course, she will want to have an extra skirt or two, and if her figure warrants it, a bright sweater to interchange with the blouses. Fabrics should be able to withstand plenty of sitting and a smattering of chalk dust.

1,500,000 Saleswomen

The saleswoman, like the actress, conducts her work on two levels: the on-stage level, before her public—the backstage level, in the stockroom and in the buyer's office. The saleswoman sells herself as well as her merchandise. She must like people, and sh meets all kinds. She must know how to deal with the demanding, Please turn to Page 7, Column 1)

the unreasonable, the indecisive. She must combine a persuasive personality with efficiency and order because she has stock to care for and figures to tally, as well as sales to make. Merchandising would just about come to a standstill without her knowledge and her efforts.

She works forty hours or less a week in a large store. In a small shop, where she is likely to know most of the customers, she may be on the job forty-eight hours. She supports herself, or supplements her husband's salary, on an average figure of $37 a week — but she can make as little as $27 or as much as a $100.

Important to her budget is the generous discount her store allows on personal purchases. If she sells behind a counter, the top half of her costume and her shoes get the major part of her attention. The former must look particularly well, the latter need to be comfortable. But if she sells on the floor, she must be smoothly groomed and smart from top to toe. Her shoes still need to be ultra comfortable, but they must look mighty well, too. Since most of the stores ask all sales personnel to wear dark colors, a piece of jewelry, a good belt, a small scarf, a bit of fresh white neckware must transform the basic dark dress yet keep it discreetly in focus.

The successful professional nurse needs a sort of split personality. She must be tender to her patient, gentle, infinitely understanding. But she needs stamina to meet the demands of her daily routine.

Her training is long and arduous. She puts in from three to five years of study and work, and her diploma is often just an introduction to more specialized graduate training. If she works in a hospital and is single, she may live in nurses' quarters for a nominal sum and may start at an average of $200 to $220 a month. She must bend her social life to suit split shifts and odd hours. If she goes on private duty, her pay rises to $10 to 12 a day, but she doesn't work every day and must pay for her own vacations and illnesses. Even if she marries and retires, she is apt to go back to part-time nursing, for which there is a great need. She knows that her work is important and she never completely lets go.

Of course she always wears white on duty. Today she has a choice of nylon, cotton or rayon and considerable latitude in styling. Her shoes must be comfortable and they must be white. Because she spends so much of her life in uniform, she is likely to go for dressier, more feminine off-duty clothes. She's the gal who likes the gay hats — the flowers, the veils, the softer dresses. She's often inclined not to be the tailored type.

Some Don'ts' For Job Hunters—

When applying for your first job, never make the mistake of using an eager "I can do anything" approach.

This is an impossibility, even for the most experienced person. And it won't fool your prospective employer for a moment.

Instead, show intelligent interest in the organization — and a willingness to learn. Your chances of landing the job will be much better.

Graduation Gifts Should Be Practical

Remember the thrill of your graduation day? Remember the feeling of great achievement . . . of pride as you walked forward to receive your diploma?

Remembering all this, you'll want to salute the members of your family or your young friends in the graduating class of 1952 with just the right gifts. Gifts that tell them how proud you are . . . gifts that will make their graduation day the same wonderful event your graduation was!

The thing to bear in mind in choosing your gift for the graduate is to make it something lasting, if possible. The sentimental value of a graduation gift cannot be emphasized too much. Years from now, your gift will be a definite memory of the thrill of graduation day.

For the girl graduate, the gift possibilities are endless. If she is someone very close to you and you want a really fine gift, choose jewelry.

There is nothing so thrilling, so precious, or so lasting as a gift of jewelry. Give her a diamond for the loveliest gift of all. It may be a small stone, but if it's beautifully-mounted she'll wear it with pride for many years and someday may have it reset as a side stone in a larger ring. Receiving a diamond for graduation will be a thrill she'll never forget, nor will she ever forget your thoughtfulness.

Another wonderful, lasting gift for the graduate is a watch. There are watches in all price ranges from which to choose for graduation gift-giving.

A string of pearls, real or cultured, will be a priceless treasure a girl will cherish all her life. She will probably wear them on her wedding day, remembering with a warm glow the day you gave them to her.

A piece of luggage, a fitted make-up case, leather gifts such as a notebook, writing case, key case or address book, are all gifts that will be used and remembered throughout the years.

There are many inexpensive, yet lasting, gifts that you can choose for a friend who's graduating. Dresser sets, perfume bottles, boudoir clocks, a piece of silver to match her pattern, or a book — are just a few of the many gift ideas.

For a member of your family, there is no finer gift than a watch. Or, give him a handsome gold-plated watch-band if he already owns a watch. If he smokes, he would welcome a handsome lighter or cigarette case.

For the young graduate who is intensely interested in a hobby, the gift ideas are many. For the golfer, a new club or bag, for the photography enthusiast, a leather case for his camera or some piece of photographic equipment he needs; or for anyone who pursues a hobby, choose a book related to the subject.

When you congratulate the graduate with a gift, you're helping to make this a proud and thrilling day. A day he'll remember always — just as you remember yours!

Sedalians Take Part In Operation Flag Hoist

PACIFIC FLEET—Among the men who participated in "Operation Flag Hoist" on the island of Iwo Jima were two Sedalians: Quinton U. Gray, stewardsman, USN, 110 East Pettis, aboard the attack transport USS Telfair; and Robert J. England, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. England 1622 South Sneed, attached to Beachmaster Unit 1.

Approximately 40,000 Naval and Marine Personnel took part in this, the largest training exercise held since the end of WWII. It was completed the end of March.

Public Library Notes—

Books On Design, Decoration Help Amateur Beautify Home

There is no reason why an amateur cannot achieve the results which professional interior designers and decorators pull out of confusion and chaos, says Donald E. MacMillan, author of the new book, "Good Taste in Home Decoration," now on the shelves of the Sedalia Public Library.

His book has been planned to give readers the knowledge which good professional decorators bring to their jobs. It is packed with fresh ideas, easy to read, and a guide to economical furnishing and decoration, geared to the individual taste. Full of useful information for home-owners, it contains shopping guides, pointers about American and Continental antiques, valuable tips on modern furniture, and new ideas in color, design and scale. It is profusely illustrated by Marvin Gulbreth.

"Decorating on a Budget," by Elizabeth Ogg, also new at the Public Library, is a guide to spending your furnishings budget wisely. The "do-it-yourself" trend is reflected in the step-by-step instructions for such projects as finishing furniture, installing indirect lighting at low cost, building window cornices, making decorative lamps, and camouflaging an ugly fireplace or bathtub. A source list tells you where to go for needed patterns, plans and materials.

Two important books on world religions have also been received at the library. "The Archeology of World Religions," by Jack Finegan, presents, from the archeological point of view, a vast panorama of ten living world religions: Primitivism, Zoroastrianism, Hinduism, Jainism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Shintoism, Islam and Sikhism. Concerned with the early history of the religions as known through discovered remains, the volume deals throughout with the actual and tangible memorials of the past. Charles Francis Potter's new book, "The Faiths Men Live By," is the dramatic, moving story of more than fifty different religions. The differences between "other religions" and your own, their basic beliefs, rituals and customs and present membership and strength are answered clearly in the pages of this fascinating comprehensive book.

Traditional Wearing of Caps, Gowns Dates to Renaissance

The academic gowns now i use take their origin from the clerical robes of the ecclesiastics of the 13th and 14th centuries.

The cape, or long gown, was originally civilian dress. By the 16th century all capes worn were scarlet. The hood, too, originally had no scholastic significance but at later dates these hoods were variously lined in different fabrics and colors to denote the variety of academic ranks.

Academic dress in the universities abroad are much more elaborate and varied than in this country, and have undergone little change since the 17th Century.

Three types of gowns and three types of hoods are provided for bachelors, masters and doctors, respectively. The square cap remains the same, except that the doctor's may have a gold tassel.

BACHELORS' GOWN: black worsted material, and distinguished by its pointed sleeves hanging to the knee.

DOCTORS' GOWN: silk — like judicial robes, the gown has full, round, open sleeves with velvet facing and three bands of velvet on each sleeve.

Hoods are lined with the school's colors, and trimmed with velvet in the color of the department of learning in which the degree is obtained.

WHITE: arts and letters; SCARET: divinity and theology; PURLE: law; BLUE: philosophy; OLDEN YELLOW: science; REEN: medicine; LILAC dentistry; PINK: music; ORANGE: ngineering.

Diplomas Stem From Ancient Days

The actual word "diploma" is Greek and literally means — a doubled or folded sheet. It was used by the Romans to denote, first — a passport or license to travel by public post—and later any imperial grant of privileges.

In the Renaissance period, the word diploma was used to denote important deed and act of overeign authority — to privilage granted by king and great peronage — and by degree the ignificance of the word changed to embrace all important document.

Thus, in the day of the ecclesiatic hierarchy of the Middle demic degree and honor were granted only by the highet peronage of the land — and the official certification of the act was completed by the issuance of the diploma.

College graduates have an average vocabulary of 60,000 words.

Drops Tail

When a lizard dashes away from an enemy, he is quite likely to leave his tail to distract the pursuer's attention while he makes his escape. By means of specially formed muscles and ligaments, the amputation is bloodless and, almost immediately ,a new tail starts to form.

Good Manners, Appearance Needed When Seeking a Job

This is the beginning of another great adventure in your life! This is the day you begin job hunting! Today may be the day — when you land your first job!

You're looking forward to that moment when you're handed your first paycheck and the thrill of knowing that you've earned it all by yourself!

Of course you're nervous. It's a drastic change from being a senior in school to becoming a career girl — or, at least, making your first step toward a career.

Finding a job is quite a challenge and it's only natural to have a slight case of jitters. Here are a few pointers for job-hunters —signposts that will help direct the way to landing that first job!

YOUR APPEARANCE — make sure that your grooming, your posture and your taste in clothes all combine to give prospective employers a good impression of you.

Your clothes should be neat and tailored for they give a picture of your businesslike approach to the job. A plain dress with a neat collar or a trim suit will impress your interviewer far more than your dressiest dress and too much jewelry.

YOUR BACKGROUND — back up your first impression with an intelligently-prepared resume of your education and qualifications. As for experience, remember that any part-time work you may have done, activity in community projects, or work on school publications will help.

Have a list of references prepared for your prospective employer. Be sure to contact these people first and ask permission to use their names as references.

YOUR APPROACH TO THE INTERVIEW — always make an appointment for your interview by means of a short, businesslike letter addressed to the proper person in the company. During your interview, be alert, well-prepared to answer questions intelligently, and courteously. —And — Good Luck!

Horse Asserts Himself

BOSTON (AP) — The horse apparently is still a steed to be reckoned with in this age of automobile traffic congestion.

A woman was recently awarded $1,000 by a Superior Court jury for injuries received when kicked by a horse.

Aid To School Poses Problem For Committee

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — How much more state aid should Missouri allot for public schools?

That is the knotty problem facing a special House-Senate committee which heard proposals yesterday to increase state aid by anywhere from $8 to $30 million a year.

Then state now is paying about $45 million. Anything extra would be in addition to the traditional one-third of the general revenue now appropriated.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly touched off an explosive controversy over the subject last year when he vetoed a $9¼ million "bonus" allotment of state aid. The subject kept coming up in the recent special legislative session but the governor refused to let the lawmakers consider it. He rebuked what he called the school lobby for pressure tactics.

Now the special committee has six proposals for increased state aid under study and expects to get more. It had a preliminary discussion of them yesterday and will tackle the subject again at its next meeting May 17 and 18.

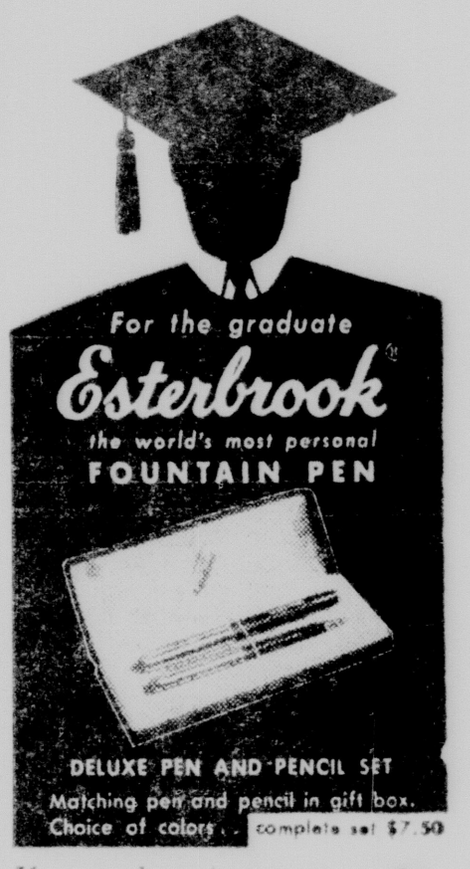

No decisions were reached yesterday. The proposals range all the way from flat grants on a per pupil basis, plus an equalization scheme, to a proposed constitutional amendment that would put state and local school expenditures on a 50-50 basis.

Sen. C. R. Hawkins (R) of Brumley, committee chairman, said the goal is to work out a recommendation for the 1955 Legislature which will be within the state's ability to pay and still provide the best education possible for all children.

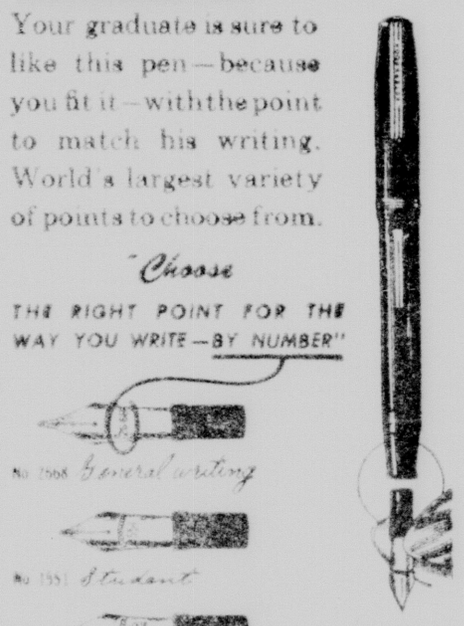

Started "Pin Money"

The reign of Charles I, of England, gave us the term "pin money." Pinmakers gave their monarch 500 pounds annually for his good will, and he turned the sum over to his queen for her private use.

Today's Students Write Better Than Their Parents Did

Today's students have better handwriting than their parents did in school and they can thank modern teaching methods and better writing equipment, according to a nationwide survey of 5,000 high school and grade school principals.

The survey revealed that two-thirds of those questioned thought handwriting had improved in the past generation.

However, most of the principals still don't think the average student's handwriting is anything to cheer about. The level of penmanship is only fair, in the opinion of 60.9 per cent of the pedagogues. It's good, according to 27.7 per cent. About ten per cent labeled it poor and one per cent rated it "terrible." None called it excellent.

Words, Words, Words!

It would be theoretically possible to have 620 billion trillion words if all conceivable combinations of letters of the alphabet were used.

By Barbara Lamy

Sacred Heart's athletic banquet was held in the Sacred Heart School cafeteria Tuesday evening, May 4. At the dinner, served by the SHHS Mother's Club, Rev. A. Migoni, C.PP.S., athletic director, gave the welcoming address. After a speech by Palmer Nichols, the basketball coach, Rev. A. J. Brunswick, C.PP.S., presented letter awards to those students who have earned them.

On their last opportunity to behave as juveniles before graduation and their entrance into an adult world, the class enjoyed a wonderful holiday. Awake at sunrise, they began their big day by competing for a prize for the best-dressed boy and girl. Mary Jo Aldridge, in long white stockings and pantaloons, and Jack Ryan, sporting a fantastic red polka-dot tie, received the honors and the prizes.

The "kids" then entertained the high school with a program of acts and skits, the reading of the junior class "Prophecy for the Class of 1954" by Bob Bennett, and "The Senior Class Will and Testament" read by Mary Jo Aldridge.
